WORST QUAKE SHAKES N.E.

'Quake Recorded—This photographic comparison of normal seismographic recordings (straight lines) and the recordings (unsteady lines) of early today shows graphically the effect of New England's latest earthquake. The Rev. James J. Devlin, S. J., points out the course taken by the seismograph needle at Weston College. STORY ON PAGE 3

BRITISH NAVY SHELLS VALONA

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—British sea power consisting of battleships, a cruiser and destroyers has swept the lower Adriatic and the battleships poured nearly 100 tons of high explosive shells into the Albanian port of Valona, the Admiralty announced today.

The raid, through the 50-mile-wide strait of Otranto, at the heel of the Italian boot, was not challenged by the Italian navy and no Italian shipping was found, the admiralty said. Valona is a vital supply port for Italian forces in Southern Albania.

British commentators pounced on the failure of the Italians to engage the warships as indication that British domination of the Mediterranean had been extended to the Adriatic, although the British penetrated only the lower part, as far north as Durazzo on the Albanian side and Bari on the Italian.

New evidence of British control of the Mediterranean itself was found in the intermittent, five-day bombardment of Italy's beleaguered Libyan base of Bardia where, the admiralty announced, three supply ships were sunk in a light force's penetration of the inner harbor on Tuesday.

The Admiralty itself drew no conclusions from the Adriatic and Bardia operations, but the naval correspondent of the British Press Association declared.

"It would seem that the Italians, driven from Taranto, and hounded again by the RAF at Naples, have sought fresh bases where they hope their fleet will keep out of the way of our Mediterranean fleet.

With the Adriatic sea now open to us, important developments may be expected."

"The Admiralty's reports would tend to bear out reports that fleets of German junkers transport planes are ferrying Italian troops to the Albanian battlefront, where they had been taken heretofore by sea.—Editor's note.

The Adriatic raid was staged the

S. S. ST. JOHN IN N. Y. HARBOR CRASH

Mist Shrouds Collision With Collier

STEAMER ST. JOHN IN N. Y. COLLISION

In a heavy fog which blanketed New York's harbor, the Eastern steamship St. John, carrying 100 passengers from Boston, collided with the 2496-ton collier Craigsmere today, a few minutes before she was due to dock.

The crash occurred directly under Brooklyn bridge, and while fireboats rushed to the scene, neither the St. John, nor the collier, owned by the Tracy Co., was damaged very much.

Capt. Corning

The St. John, however, will be tied up for repairs for a few days, necessitating a change in schedules. There will be no Eastern Steamship Company sailings out of New York for Boston tonight or Sunday.

The Acadia will sail out of Boston tonight as usual, but the company will have to skip Saturday and Monday sailings from here. Regular schedules will be resumed Tuesday.

The St. John made a mercy trip to Bordeaux, France, and Cork, Ireland, in September, 1939, to bring home 437 Americans fleeing the war zone. She was built in 1932 at Newport News.

Capt. W. B. Corning of the St. John said a large hole was made on the starboard side of his ship just above the water line. None aboard was injured.

What about food in England today? You will find the answer in the following article by Milo M. Thompson, the fifth of his series of stories on wartime life in that country.

By MILO M. THOMPSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Suppose we take a market basket and go looking for food in my own little suburban shopping district of London today.

Shopping in a bombed area of London, this woman finds there's plenty of fruit to be had . . . including apples, pears, plums and oranges.

We take a doubledeck bus, and pay three ha'pence (three cents) for the ride that in pre-war days was a penny one. We pass the public gardens, the tennis courts, cricket pitch, bowling green and golf club of the neighborhood and note people seriously at the work of "keeping fit.' We pass many brick houses with pleasant gardens.

Some of the houses are not so tidy as they once were, due to broken glass, but no heap of wreckage stares at us on this particular ride.

We hop off at the English equivalent of the American "five and ten" store—a "thruppence and sixpence" store.

There is always something one needs in such a place. This crowded store has its food counters too. They are full of canned soups, fruits, galantines, fish such as sardines and kipper snacks, malted milk, package cheese, jellies, self-rising flour, dried fruits and the like. There is plenty of tea cakes and candy.

No ration cards here and no starvation for the fellow who has a sixpence!

ADVICE—SHOP EARLY

But we are after more sturdy stuff and go out again to the meat markets. It is early in the day and we find in the windows, below the roasting and stewing cuts of strictly rationed beef, mutton and veal hanging on their silver hooks, trays of unrationed "edible offals."

There are hearts, kidneys, liver, tripe and the like, and sausages which are half meat and half bread crumbs, the meat content of sausages being prescribed by law.

One has to snap these things up quickly if one wants them, because the day's supply does not last many hours. But you can shop for offals where you please, whereas you must go for bacon, butter, sugar, cooking fats and fresh meat to the store at which you are registered.

WEEKLY QUOTA

One leg of lamb, or its equivalent, is all the fresh meat we are entitled to for the week. It has already been ordered. So we pick up some liver to go with the slim allowance of bacon we shall pick up at our own store along with the week's butter and sugar portion. It is not big

Worst New England Quake Startles Thousands, Sways Buildings, Homes

Earth tremors shook the Northeast section of the nation today with such force that sleepers were dumped out of bed, huge buildings swayed in various far-flung sections and pictures, dishes and telephones were jarred to floors.

The brunt of the earthquake was in an area from Philadelphia on the south, Long Island to the east and north to Bangor, Me., and Montreal.

"It was the worst earth tremor recorded in New England," reported Dr. L. Don Leet, in charge of the Harvard University Observatory in the town of Harvard.

So severe was it, in fact, that the Rev. James J. Devlin, in charge of seismographic instruments at Weston College, reported that his needle was bounced off the recording tape.

Dr. Devlin and Dr. Leet agreed that the center of the tremor was about 100 miles north of Boston, perhaps in the vicinity of Ossipee, N. H., or Lincoln, N. H., near Franconia Notch.

The Harvard seismograph recorded the shocks as starting at 27 minutes and 29 seconds after 2 a. m. The machine at Weston recorded the start felt there at 27 minutes and 53 seconds after 2 o'clock.

Fordham University's seismograph in New York recorded the quake first at 2:28.22 a. m.

Officials at Fordham said the quake was general in the Northeast area. They described it as "a shallow focus quake" of mild proportions.

No serious damage would result, they added, and there was no occasion for alarm, their predictions later being carried out in a widespread checkup.

The temblor was a natural occurrence at this time of year, the Fordham men explained, but usually the seasonal quake is not felt.

And the proximity to the earth of the Cunningham Comet, now close to its maximum approach to the earth, had nothing to do with the quake, Harvard seismograph officials asserted.

Despite the severity of the shock worse even than the quake of a year ago in October, there was surprisingly little damage reported—most of it being confined to small breakage in homes.

FBI OUTWITTED IN CABBAGE PATCH

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—A man in a black overcoat, who attempted to extort money from the wealthy De Tristan family, recent victims of a kidnaping, snatched a faked payment from the hands of an FBI agent—then escaped from a police trap by crawling down the muddy rows of a cabbage patch.

Reliable sources told today how the Federal Bureau of Investigation frustrated an extortion threat against the parents of three-year-old Marc De Tristan, Jr., and how the extortionist made his dramatic escape from 22 officers who had surrounded him.

FBI OUTWITTED

The trap was set Wednesday night in a cabbage patch near Santa Rosa. FBI agents had been working secretly for three weeks on a letter sent the Court and Countess, Marc De Tristan through the Santa Rose postoffice.

Under instructions of the extortionist, R. J. Bobbitt, assistant chief of the FBI in San Francisco, posing as an emissary of the De Tristans, stood in a cabbage patch with a cigar box supposedly containing an extortion payment.

One of the posse of FBI agents, police and highway patrolmen hidden around the patch, said a shadowy figure snatched the box from Bobbitt's hands and ran.

When the agent threatened to shoot, the extortionist dared him to "go ahead and shoot." The "trapped" man dropped to the ground and crawled through the mud.

FLEES DOWN RAVINE

The heavily armed officers closed in. They were so confident of capturing him alive and with the evidence they did not fire. While they chased him the little man disappeared—out of the cabbage patch and down a ravine into a rugged creek bottom.

In his crawling flight he abandoned the cigar box and the worthless strips of paper with which it was packed in place of currency.

The golden-haired De Tristan boy, closely guarded by his parents at their home in the exclusive Hillsborough community 20 miles south of San Francisco, was kidnaped last Sept. 20 by Wilhelm Jakob Munlenbroich, a German alien who had visions of getting $100,000 in ransom for returning the child.

Instead, Muhlenbroich was overpowered by a couple of lumberjacks in the mountains east of San Francisco and is now in San Quentin prison serving a life sentence.

Sidelights In Story of N. E. Quake

Even in the midst of Christmas shopping, the Great American Game in these parts today was swapping stories of what happened or what people thought was happening to them when the 'quake hit.

John Coughlin, Western Union wire chief, was a bit baffled when he was bounced off a stool in front of a switchboard in downtown High st. headquarters. But it wasn't for long. The switchboard lighted up like a Christmas tree with inquiring calls.

Worcester saw hundreds of frightened persons running out into the streets in their nighties, even though it was pouring rain and bitter cold.

At Ossipee, N. H., center of the disturbance, Deputy Sheriff Harry Leavitt reported that no great damage was done.

"There was a stampede among the turkeys at a big farm in Tamworth and they haven't counted the casualties yet," he added.

Watertown police and firemen had a hard time of it, what with thousands of residents calling in to ask if some saboteur has succeeded in blowing up the arsenal.

Out in Northampton scores of cracks were opened up in city streets. Another headache for the public works department, with sleet and ice spreading the fissures wider.

In Hingham an unsung heroine at the telephone company reassured scores of persons by plugging a trunk line through to the Boston newspapers, where frightened residents were assured that the worst was over.

VENGEANCE VICTIM'S BRIDE BRAVES PERIL AT FUNERAL

Refusing to heed police warnings of possible danger, Mrs. Marie Chenery Legro was determined to attend the funeral of her murdered husband, Kenneth S. Legro, in Peabody today.

The young bride-widow also disregarded her physician's advice not to face the ordeal, but resolutely demanded to be pesent at the final services for the man who had been threatened with and met death because of their marriage.

Twice she went to the home of the victim's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Legro, in Lynn st., Peabody, accompanied by police guards, to view her husband's body.

TROOPERS GUARD HER

Grief strained her face and several times the black-gowned widow was seen to break down, sobbing. Her physician expressed concern over her health, weakened by shock and sorrow, because of her prospective motherhood.

State troopers and detectives, heavily armed, were sent to augment the detail of Peabody officers to guard the widow and her relatives during the funeral. Services were scheduled to be held at the Legro home, with Rev. Leslie Perdiau of the Second Congregational Church officiating. The elder Legro is a deacon of the church.

Heavy guards likewise were stationed at the home of the widow's family, Mr. and Mrs. James Chenery, Washington st., Peabody.

Special precautions were taken to guard mourners at the interment services at Cedar Grove Cemetery.

WATCH FOR SUSPECT

Plainclothes men were ordered to circulate through the crowd to maintain a watch for a man resembling George Corey, 27, of Salem, sought on a warrant for the Legro murder.

From the time of the shooting on Monday night at the Legro bungalow in Hull, police have maintained a close watch over the widowed bride in the frankly-expressed fear that the slayer might attempt to do harm to her also.

Shortly after the murder she was spirited away to a hiding place, with a doctor in attendance, and officials hoped she would remain there during the funeral services.

They feared that the killer might come to Peabody, with the idea of wreaking vengeance on the girl or her family.

MOTHER IN COLLAPSE

Meantime, Corey's mother, grey-haired Mrs. Michael Corey, 60, of Phelps st., Salem, who had been in a state of collapse at the thought of her only son being sought on a murder charge, left the bed to which a physician had ordered her, to implore Mayor Edward A. Coffey of Salem for aid.

With her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Corey, she visited the mayor at City Hall and asked that he protect her son in the event he surrenders or is arrested. Mayor Coffey explained that it would be necessary to obtain counsel for the young man, and the grief-stricken mother returned home.

Earlier she had sat, hour after long hour, stunned and incoherent, swaying from side to side with bowed head and moaning.

MANY VIEW BODY

At times Mrs. Corey clasped her head in her hands and muttered:

"Why did he go away? Why do they say he did it? I don't know where he can be. Where could he be? Oh, I don't know, I don't know."

Meanwhile the body of the murder victim, laid out in the home of his parents, was viewed by scores of his friends and acquaintances. All day long flowers arrived at the Legro home, and there was a steady stream of mourners.

State police will question a Salem man from whom Corey is reported to have borrowed a pistol last Monday, the day when Legro was shot to death in front of his Fairmount way, Nantasket, bungalow.

Mothers Watch Hunt For Thin Ice Victims

Through the bitter hours of a rainy afternoon, two Arlington mothers stood side by side today—one grieving over a drowned son and the other fearful of the same fate for her boy.

Arlington police were battering out the slushy ice of Spy Pond with a rowboat to drag for the fourth victim of New England's skating season as the grieving women watched helplessly.

The boy feared dead was Walter Harrington, 16, of Dartmouth st., Arlington.

Mrs. Harrington stood arm in arm and sobbed intermittently with Mrs. Elizabeth White of Swan pl., Arlington, whose son, William, 16, was found in the pond this morning.

Young White, manager of the high school football team and head of the debating society, broke through the ice, near Lynnwood st.

Until his shoes were found and identified by his brother Charles, 21, identity of the White boy was delayed.

The other two victims were Robert Kimball, 16, of Meadow st., Somerville, and Nelson Castelli, 15, of Waverley st., Framingham.

The Kimball boy died in Dudley pond at Wayland, and Emil Malihet, 19, of Cottage st., Saxonville, who was with him, barely escaped a similar fate.

Joseph Carlo, 15, of Knox st., Framingham, was with Castelli when the ice gave way at Metropolitan Reservoir No. 2, in Ashland. Carlo was immersed in slush up to his waist as he fought to gain the shore, but managed to make it.

$2000 Bet On Horses, Blood Says

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 20—Richard E. Blood calmly reached for a glass of water, took a drink, and then explained how horse-race bets accounted for $2000 of the $3050 in notes he gave his father-in-law, at his trial here today on a charge of murdering his wife, Muriel Blood.

The State labor department employe, accused of inflicting fatal injuries on his wife in their Pawtucket home on Sept. 5, testified the arrangement to place bets resulted in financial losses and he gave the note to Charles Jardine, his father-in-law, to hide the loss from Jardine's family.

Blood's testimony was given shortly after Asst. Atty.-Gen. James O. Watts began cross-examination for the State in an attempt to break Blood's claim that he is guiltless of the murder charge.

$2250 BET ON HORSES

Blood admitted $2250 of the money represented by the notes totaling $3050 was bet on horses at Narragansett, but contended he did not borrow the money but was acting in co-operation with his father-in-law.

"Then how is it you acknowledge that you owed that money by this statement?" Asst. Atty.-Gen. Watts demanded as he waved the note in front of Blood.

The defendant calmly reached for the glass of water, took a drink, and replied:

"Never in my life have I tried to dodge responsibility for any act of mine. In this case there was a slight moral obligation on my part. He wouldn't carry out the entire program, and right in the middle of it he withdrew. Therefore, there was a financial loss.

"Mr. Jardine had given me this money without the knowledge of his family but with the full knowledge of Muriel.

DEFENSE OVERRULED

"I made out this not for $2000 payable on demand and he could tell his family any explanation he wanted for it. It was an insurance to cover the transaction until such time as my finances would permit paying it. Does that explain it?"

"You're asking me?" Watts demanded as he walked away amid a flutter of laughter that swept the courtroom.

The entire questioning on the notes was punctcuated by objections by Defense Counsel Atty. Sigmund W. Fischer, Jr., who argued the matter was irrelevant. However, Judge G. Frederick Frost ruled in favor of Watts on the ground the defense introduced the matter of Blood's finances.

Strip Robber Gets 6 Years

SALEM, Dec. 20—Pleading guilty to the strip robbery of a Wenham girl autoist, Henry St. Arneault, 22-year-old oww job man of Park st., Salem, was sentenced here today to six years and a day in Concord Reformatory.

On Sept. 21, according to police, St. Arneault begged a ride of Miss Betty Dickenson, 26, who was driving her beach wagon along Highland ave., Salem.

Threatening her with a knife, he forced her to a lonely spot, where he compelled her to strip.

He then fled in her car, taking her clothes and her handbag containing $12.

10TH HELD IN DEVENS JOBS SIFT

A tenth man was arrested and two more were expected to surrender today as federal agents continued their probe of alleged job racketeering at Fort Devens.

Seized at the fort and brought to Boston for arraignment was Paul Piantedosi, 37, of Pitt st., North End. He peladed not guilty to a charge of conspiracy to steal and was held for the federal grand jury in $2000 bail by U. S. Commr. Howard W. Robbins.

Five of the men arrested have already been arraigned in Worcester and five here, including Piantedosi.

Investigators said the racket worked at Fort Devens called for one man in a group of five checking in with the work buttons for the others, each man reporting for work only once in five days and all receiving full pay checks.

That the racket threatens national defense work and may involve sabotage was charged by U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon when he disclosed the extent of the investigation.

3.8 in Average U. S. Family

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—For the first time in history, the average American family now numbers less than four persons.

The Census Bureau, analyzing the results of the 1940 census, reported today that the contemporary household has an average of 3.8 persons.

These statistics mean a continuation of the steady decline which has been in progress since the first family computation was made, 50 years ago, and corresponded with annual figures of a declining birth rate.

In 1890, the bureau pointed out, the average family consisted of 4.9 persons.

Cambridge Housing Bids Only $100 Apart

Bidding $1,228 000 was C. J. Maney Co. The third lowest bid was that of Edmund J. Rappoli, at $1,243,000.

Cop Found, Didn't Steal Liquor, He Tells Court

It was 15 minutes past midnight on the balmy evening of June 11, 1940.

And in a cardboard carton outside the rear of a liquor store in Center st., West Roxbury, 12 bottles of whiskey nestled cozily.

"I didn't have any idea where the liquor came from," Patrolman John S. Stabins of the West Roxbury police division testified today. "I considered it just a find. I put the carton near a hedge. And later I gave six bottles to Patrolman Joe Carey and kept six myself."

DENIES THEFT

Stabins took the witness stand in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court in his defense. He and Patrolman Joseph R. Carey are on trial, charged with larceny.

Cross-examining Stabins, Asst. Dist. Atty. William J. Sullivan sought to bring forth further details of the midnight liquor "find."

Q—You hid it in the hedge because you know you stole it, didn't you? A—No, sir. I didn't know where it came from. I thought it was a find. I just put it near the hedge. There wasn't any hiding.

STICKS TO STORY

Q—Why didn't you put the liquor in the cruising car? A—I don't know.

Q—You sold some of it and took money for it, didn't you? A—No, sir.

Q—Where did you suppose this liquor came from? A—I had no idea.

Q—You found it right back of the liquor store and you want to tell this jury you had no idea where it came from? A—Yes, sir.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Sullivan then showed the officer a purported statement in the form of a report to Capt. John J. McArdle of the West Roxbury station.

Q—Didn't you report to Capt. McArdle you and Officer Carey went into the liquor store to look the place over? A—I don't remember that.

Hull Supports Grew In Attack on Japan

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—Secretary of State Hull today supported Ambassador Joseph Grew's position in Tokyo by asserting that America's policy insisting on the status quo in the Far East still stands.

Hull called attention to past declarations of policy which have not been changed. In a note to Japan Dec. 31, 1938, which has never been answered, the government stated:

"This government reserves all rights of the United States as they exist and does not give assent to any impairment of those rights."

Hull said there had been no deviation from that position.

Hull's remarks followed a forthright speech by Grew in Tokyo yesterday was generally interpreted in Washington as a clear warning that the United States will call any German-inspired "campaign of bluff" on the part of Japan.

At the same time it threw into sharper relief the Axis assignment for Japan in the World War. Japan's job is to build herself up, by word, if not by deed, as a "menace," with the aim of centering American attention on the Far East, vitiating the program of aid to Great Britain, and holding as much of the U. S. fleet as possible in Pacific waters, it was said.

PROPAGANDA DRIVE

First overtures of this campaign began to be heard after Japan signed the tri-partite military alliance with Germany and Italy in September when German Gestapo agents, propagandists, "journalists" and "tourists" began to pour into Tokio by the hundreds.

Interviews given to foreign correspondents, speeches by leading statesmen and militarists, and the Japanese press began to develop the theme that Japanese relations with the U. S. would remain friendly only if it "minds its own business," not only in the Orient, but elsewhere.

There was always the broad implication that if this country becomes involved in a war with Germany through aid-to-Britain it might have to reckon with Japan.

Foreign Minister Matsuoka recited this theme at the farewell luncheon given by the Japan-American Society for Admiral Nomura, new ambassador to the United States, in Tokyo yesterday.

GREW TALKS TURKEY

Thereupon, Ambassador Grew, in plain and unmistakable language, replied that, while this country does not want war, it is determined to protect its own interests.

"Mr. Matsuoka lived lived long enough in the United States to know the American people are fundamentally peace-minded," the ambassador said. "But they are firmly determined on certain matters—their obligations and rights. He also knows that with the American people the only thing that counts is facts and actions, regardless of the persuasive garb in which they may be dressed."

Grew's frank declarations were said to be well-timed. For, with the U. S. about to increase tremendously its aid to Britain, now is the time for Japan to make her role under Axis strategy count, if ever she can, observers said. The Japanese "menace" can be expected to expand to its fullest dimensions before President Roosevelt's proposed plan to lend Britain billions of dollars in shipping, war planes and munitions can be realized, they added.

U. S. Conciliator Enters Ford Row

DETROIT, Dec. 20 (INS)—Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey today stepped into the Ford Motor Co-UAW-CIO dispute when he arranged separate conferences with the company and the union.

Dewey said he was ordered to arrange conferences by Dr. John Steelman, chief of the labor department's conciliation bureau. The assignment of Dewey followed a union complaint to President Roosevelt that the company was discharging union workers.

FREED IN KILLING

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20 (INS)—Sylvia Ageloff, Brooklyn girl who has been in jail since the pick-axe murder of Leon Trotsky, will be released the day before Christmas under a ruling of the first penal court of Coyoacan today.

The judge ruled that the evidence linking Miss Ageloff to the assassination was insufficient and ordered her release. As soon as other legal formalities are completed she will be free to return to her home in Brooklyn.

Judge Hugh D. McLellan imposed a suspended sentence of one year and a day and ordered Weidman placed on probation

HEROINE, 12, AVERTS RAIL CRASH

Florence Gulfoy, 12, found herself filling a heroine's role today after her quick thinking averted a double train wreck near the Redfield st. bridge, Dorchester, last night.

Seeing an abandoned automobile straddled across the in-bound and out-bound tracks, she raced to her home, 165 Tenean st., and a relative made a quick telephone call to the Fields Corner police station.

Two trains were due in a few minutes—one a fast freight, the other a passenger train bound for the South Shore.

Lieut. Thomas N. Trainor sped to the scene after a quick call to the New Haven train dispatcher, who halted both trains.

The automobile — stolen from a Tyler street parking place near Chinatown — had roared through Dorchester sts. at breakneck speed. The man at the wheel swerved sharply as the car approached the bridge. In roller-coaster fashion the machine crashed over the embankment near the bridge and its impetus carried it over the roadbed so that its rear covered one rail of the outbound tracks and its front wheels crossed the inbound.

Lieut. Trainor found one badly dazed man attempting to assist another from the automobile. He tried to grapple with the pair, but the stronger of the two battled him off and then the men were able to get away.

F.D. SPIKES DEFENSE RUMORS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today nothing had been decided yet about revising the set-up of the defense commission. The President said there would be an afternoon conference of the commission.

As for reports of some rearrangement to put a three-man group in charge, the President characterized them as newspaper stories, though it was Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, who said yesterday that consideration was being given to the high command idea.

Mr. Roosevelt said that was only one of four or five setups under consideration.

DELAY ON 3 BASES

To an inquiry as to whether he intended to ask the new Congress for more money for the RFC to finance construction of munitions factories Mr. Roosevelt said he was under the impression there already was enough money, and repeated that though congressional action would be needed he did not believe repeal of the Johnson law would be necessary.

The President said decisions were being delayed on only three out of eight of the naval bases acquired from Britain.

BERMUDA BIG PROBLEM

The three are at Trinidad, which he said was a big island with many sites, Bermuda, where the biggest problem is interfering the least with sleep and happiness of American tourists, and Mayaguana, where he said there was a very excellent lagoon that could be used for seaplanes, but that anchorage for ships was poor.

On the cruise, the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa and her escort destroyers reached Mayaguana about sundown, the President said, and they tried three separate times to find a place where their anchors would reach bottom and the ships would not blow ashore.

The Tuscaloosa and the destroyers, he said, had to steam up and down off the island all night because they could not anchor.

After his press conference, the President discussed the defense program with Speaker Rayburn, House Majority Leader John W. McCormack and Rep. Lyndon Johnson (D.) of Texas.

Rayburn said they had talked over the program "up one side and down the other," taking up such matters as the amount of money needed and the legislation "it is going to take to carry on the defense program."

"We were hearing what suggestions he's got," the Speaker said. "If he has made up his mind on what he is going to recommend to Congress, he did not say so. He is just exploring the field."

CUSHING TAX LEVY SOUGHT

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Dec. 20 (AP)—The probate court had disclosed today that the State of Connecticut was seeking to levy succession taxes on a $600,000 irrevocable trust fund created by the late Dr. Harvey Cushing, fame brain surgeon, 11 years before his death.

Dr. Cushing, who died here Oct. 1, 1939, left a personal estate inventoried at $600,000, it was announced also.

ATTORNEYS ARGUE

Attorneys for the state and for the executors have argued over the taxibility of the trust fund, the point at issue being whether it was created in anticipation of death. Judge John L. Gilson reserved decision.

Dr. Cushing provided that the income of the trust fund, created July 17, 1928, while he lived at Brookline, Mass., was to be paid to his wife, Katherine, or to any or all of their children she might designate.

After Mrs. Cushing's death, the principal was to be divided among the children, Henry K. Cushing, of Boston, Mrs. Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, former wife of the President's son, James; Mrs. Barbara Cushing Astor, of New York, and Miss Mary Cushing, of New Haven.

FUND DIVIDED

In the event no children or grandchildren survived Mrs. Cushing, the fund was to be divided among Western Reserve University of Cleveland, Yale University, the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, of Boston, and Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Cushing's will directed that after the payment of certain bequests his personal estate be divided into three parts, one for the widow, the second for the children, and the third for Yale University for research in medical history.

Death Is Price Of $1 He Saved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Young William Hunter needed a little money to buy his sweetheart a Christmas present.

They found him dead in the back of a truck, where he slept to save the dollar his employer had allowed him for lodging.

Hunter, who was in the C. C. C. a short time ago, came here as a helper on a truck from a greenhouse in Whitestone, Long Island. He was bringing a load of flowers for the Chirstmas trade.

When the driver was ready to take him to a hotel for the night, Hunter, whose home is in College Point, L. I., asked him for the money instead. He told him about his girl and not having a cent to buy her something for Christmas.

So he curled up on a shelf in the back of the truck and went to sleep. The flowers were packed all around him. Under him, on the floor of the truck, was a small charcoal stove, lighted to keep the flowers from freezing.

The coroner said today that the boy had suffocated when the stove consumed all the oxygen.

Christmas Fund to Aid Disabled Vets

The Disabled Veterans Christmas Remembrance Committee today was planning to augment its usual program of gifts for 4800 Massachusetts disabled and hospitalized veterans, with similar gifts to fill members of the regular and conscripted groups in the armed services.

Contributions should be sent to the treasurer, Allan Forbes, of the State Street Trust Company, State st., Boston.

England Eyes Enemy Ships in U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP) — Britain's minister of shipping today cast what he called a "covetous eye" on a certain number of enemy ships in the United States and declared that assignment of these and United States ships to the British service "are the only ways I can see for replenishments of any consequence."

The minister, Ronald Cross, declared that Britain's "real struggle" with Germany would come in 1941. The statements came in an interview with the American press.

He pictured the submarine menace as still the greatest threat to British fortunes and said it could be overcome only by increasing numbers of destroyers and by new shipping which Britain now is turning out at her virtual maximum of production.

"One naturally hopes that the United States will be able to see her way to help us in the coming year," Cross said.

"I am extremely grateful for what we have got already. A large amount has already been supplied and we have to thank the good wil of the administration."

Speaking of Britain's need for destroyers, Cross said:

"We obviously can do with a great deal more destroyers. We know how to master the submarine, given equipment to do it, but we cannot expect to get the submarine menace so far subdued that it will not require an enormous amount of new construction to maintain the war effort at full blast."

Woman Freed In $2100 Theft

Mrs. Hazel R. Pillsbury, 45, of Main st., Melrose, was absolved of a $2100 larceny from two Allston women in Brighton court today, but was immediately arrested on a similar charge brought by a Manchester, N. H., woman.

Judge Thomas H. Connelly found her not guilty of the larceny charge brought by Mrs. Venie E. Cheney, 73, and her daughter, Ethel, 43, both of Commonwealth ave., Allston.

The two women had complained that Mrs. Pillsbury obtained the cash from them in a business transaction which she had failed to complete. Mrs. Pillsbury testified she obtained the money as a loan and gave notes for it.

As Mrs Pillsbury started to leave the courtroom, Inspector William E. Jennings arrested her on a New Hampshire fugitive from justice warrant on complaint of Ella C. Pinkos.

The warrant charged Mrs. Pillsbury cheated and defrauded the Manchester woman of $800 which was allegedly given to her to invest. Mrs. Pillsbury entered a not guilty plea to the charge and was released on $500 bail for hearing Dec. 27.

Weather Man Predicts Green Yule for N. E.

New England, with the exception of small northern portions, is likely to have a green Christmas, the weather man's long range forecast indicated today.

The only precipitation in sight is rain. Only in the most northerly parts of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont will snow replace rain.

The five-day forecast prepared by the weather bureau station in Boston calls for temperatures averaging three to five degrees warmer than normal from now until Christmas Day.

TWO MORE SHIPS ARE ATTACKED

BULLETIN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Greek freighter Potaro sent an SOS today from a position about 750 miles east of Porto Alegre, Brazil.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Two ships were attacked by submarines about 450 miles west of the Irish coast today in what appeared to be the second attack on a convoy in three days.

Word of the attack was heard by Mackay Radio which picked up messages from the vessels. Both gave positions in the same area—the area that in recent months has become the graveyard of British ships carrying war materials to the beleaguered English isles.

The first report today came from the British steamer Carlton. At 7:59 a. m. she radioed that a submarine had crossed her bow and then launched a torpedo.

Thirty-six minutes later came a second report, this time from a ship which did not identify itself.

Later, the vessel was identified by Mackay as the 2842-ton Norwegian freighter Varangberg out of Oslo, a former Great Lakes steamer. The ship was built in 1915 at Ashtabula, Ohio.

"Being attacked by submarine, 55.31 north latitude, 19.25 west longitude," the message said.

The 5162-ton Carlton, built in 1924, is owned by R. Chapman & Sons and operated out of Newcastle.

Scores of British-controlled ships have been attacked by U-boats in the same general area since Germany stepped up its campaign against shipping. The last assault bearing the marks of an attack against a convoy was unloosed Wednesday when two tankers and a freighter reported within four hours that they had been torpedoed.

These ships, the 12,196-ton British Napier Star, the 8860-ton Norwegian Dalfonn and the 10,746-ton Dutch Pendrecht, the latter two tankers, placed themselves somewhat north of the scene of today's attacks.

Shoppers Jam Downtown Hub

Warm weather today attracted increasingly larger crowds to the downtown shopping area as New England's army of Christmas shoppers went into the stretch drive.

As the tempo of holiday buying mounted to an expected two-day peak, ending the last full week of shopping, merchants reported a banner season was assured.

Crowds steadily grew, overflowing sidewalks and jostling good-naturedly in solid ranks. Clerical forces were increased accordingly, and police details and others were augmented to continue the smooth flow of traffic.

Cash purchases are exceeding last year's averages, and the sales generally were interpreted as indicating a general prosperity.

The men, generally considered less hardy and exacting then the feminine buyers, are turning out in larger numbers early this season, relieving the last-minute rush on Dec. 24, which has gained the title "Men's Day."

Australians 19 to 33 Must Register

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 20 (INS)—All Australian men, between the ages of 19 and 33, single and married, will register for compulsory military training, it was announced today. The statement indicated, however, that married men probably will not be called for actual military service.

Italians Grimly Hold On at Bardia

CAIRO Dec 20 (AP)—By land, sea and air the British reported their forces kept up a remorseless pounding of Bardia today with Italians trapped in "an beleaguered Libyan port battling fiercely to break through their blocked line of retreat to the west.

Supporting the forces encircling Bardia, where the British estimate 20,000 Italians are holding out, the RAF blasted the Libyan coast westward to Derna, 175 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Practically the entire Fascist military at Derna camp was declared left in flames.

Heavily raiding Derna simultaneously with a similar assault of Bardia, the RAF command reported its planes Thursday night set off fires and explosions with direct hits on barracks, police headquarters, motor transport parks and garages at the former Fascist base.

"When our last aircraft left the scene practically the whole of the camp was ablaze," today's communique said. "Similar raids were carried out on enemy troop concentrations and motor transports to the northwest of Bardia, all our bombs falling within the target area."

Military circles here said the stiff resistance encountered at Bardia was not likely to lessen the activity of British tanks and Bren gun carriers, which were reported mopping up the road leading westward to Tobruk, vital Italian naval base 80 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

Reports from Rome indicated that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, commander of Italy's North African armies, might select Tobruk as the site for a conclusive test of strength with Gen. Archibald P. Wavell's army of the Nile.

Axis Extend 3-Power Pact

BERLIN, Dec. 20 (AP)—Germany, Italy and Japan agreed today on appointment of various commissions envisaged by their pact of military collaboration against any new enemy in the European or Asiatic wars. The action made the pact a "living organism," declared informed quarters.

It was understood announcement of the personnel would come later in the day.

This was the disclosure that authorized sources predicted in advance and which they said would present an "interesting prospect of further development of co-operation between nations united in the three-power pact."

These sources also were expected today or tomorrow to release concrete news "on further consolidation within the French government."

It was intimated that the German comment would become available after the French chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, delivered a radio address which he has promised his nation.

No comment was available on the report from Sturga, Yugoslavia, that German transport planes were ferrying Italian reinforcements across the Adriatic to Albania, since this constitutes military information.

Bomb Fragment Yule Gift to U. S. Refugees

SANTA FE, N. M. Dec. 20 (AP)—Two little English girl refugees, nieces of a Santa Fe woman, received a pre Christmas present from home today, in the form of fragment from a German bomb. Their mother sent a card saying:

"Merry Christmas. This missed daddy (a captain in the British Army) by several miles."

ITALIANS TOLD WHY THEY LOSE

ROME, Dec. 20 (TP) - A semi-official bulletin, issued here today to show the size of the British forces which, it said, Italian troops are "gallantly facing," put them at 1500 airplanes, 425,000 troops and 500,000 tons of warships.

It described British forces as crack troops, recruited in England, Australia, New Zealand and elsewhere in the British empire.

British sources have indicated that British army strength in Africa is between 250,000 and 300,000 men, although British leaders have referred recently to considerable reinforcements. Britain's naval and air strength are military secrets, but her Mediterranean fleet is known to be large and powerful and, at the start of the 12-day-old campaign in the western desert, it was said that shifts of some warplanes from Egypt to Greece had not impaired the RAF's power in North Africa. —Editor's Note.

Informed sources declared that German troops were not in Italy, were not en route to any Italian front and would not be sent to any.

There have been reports of German troops entering Italy through the Brenner Pass and it was said yesterday at Struga, Yugoslavia, that big German transports were being used to fly Italian reinforcements to Albania. International News Service in Budapest reported the Hungarian press today published formal denials of foreign reports that German troops are being sent into Italy. —Editor's note.

The bulletin issued through Stefani of world news agencies [illegible] Premier Mussolini's statement to the House of Commons yesterday in which he declared of the "property rights of the enemy effort which Great Britain directly are facing the [illegible] fronts of our war."

It quoted Churchill as saying that arms for Britain's forces in Africa had been going directly from Britain last summer and included armored cars of the best quality and modern guns.

Nazis Renew British Raids

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—One low-flying German raider dropped a stick of bombs on the London district today but there was little damage and no casualties were reported.

One bomb hit an air raid shelter which invariably is occupied during alerts but it was empty because no air raid alarm had sounded.

The bombers resumed after almost a three-day lull their onslaught on the British isles last night and early today, but a government communique dismissed results of the raids inconsequential.

Unfavorable weather was reported to have confined the RAF to comparatively minor activity in its operations against the Axis.

Coincident with the raid renewals, the admiralty made public what it claimed was a document found in an Italian submarine allegedly instructing Italian submarine captains to attack "certain Spanish merchant ships without warning."

The purported order, allegedly signed by Mario Falangola, vice-admiral commanding submarines, directed the submarines to "attack without warning" Spanish ships belonging to the Ybarra and the Pinillos Shipping companies leaving Casablanca, Morocco and sailing toward Lisbon.

British Boy, 5, on Way to U. S. Alone

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 20 (AP) —Five and one-half year old Axel Gorm Andersen of New York, homeward bound from the wars, thanks of British and German airmen as "air cowboys."

Traveling on his own, with the aid of tags hung around his neck, one "addressing" him to his father, Axel Andersen of Woodside, Queensborough, New York city, the little tow-headed boy arrived by air today. The Red Cross will put him aboard the S.S. Siboney.

Axel was visiting his grandparents on the outskirts of Trondheim when Germany invaded and occupied Norway, starting last April 9.

WANTS TO BE COWBOY

He was sent alone to Petsamo, Finland in August to take the American transport American Legion with other refugees, but missed the boat by a day. Finally, passage through Germany by train and plane to Spain and Portugal was arranged through the Red Cross.

He speaks only Norwegian, except such words as "cowboy" and "movies." He has planned his own career . . . to be a cowboy and "ride and shoot."

He can't understand why grandpa and grandma and his aunt wouldn't let him watch the air battles over Trondheim but always hustled him into shelter.

"I'm not afraid of planes," he said.

He insists he can tell British planes from German planes by the sound of the motors and he made the noises to prove it.

SAT WITH NAZI FLIERS

On the plane ride to Lisbon, the child sat beside the German Lufthansa pilots most of the time and they gave him a present for his "help in piloting the plane."

A fellow passenger on the trip is Helen Cederlund, a pretty Norwegian, en route to the United States to meet Harold Flatta, an engineer employed by the War Department in Washington, whom she met at the New York World's Fair when she was [illegible]

RAF Pounds Ruhr and Essen

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP) — The RAF flew through bad weather last night and attacked "several targets in the Ruhr and in western Germany," concentrating on oil plants and storage facilities the air ministry announced today.

The ministry communique said that the targets also included power stations, a railway junction at Essen, site of the great Krupp armament works. Four explosions from heavy bombs were reported in the Essen assault.

A low level attack on the Rhine city of Bonn caused "one very large fire."

"In the Duisburg area two large fires were observed and oil targets near Cologne were set ablaze," said the communique. "At Duesseldorf several large fires were caused and an anti-aircraft position was bombed."

British bombers also hit the Bergen-Oslo railroad in Norway, much used by the Germans for military purposes, in an overnight air raid, the air ministry reported today.

Tunney Ordered To Duty in U. S. Camps

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—James J. Tunney, former heavyweight champion and once a private in the Marine Corps, was commissioned today as a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve. He was ordered immediately to active duty as physical director and co-ordinator of physical education at the aviation training stations at Pensacola and Jacksonville Fla., and Corpus Christi Texas.

Bevin Hails F.D. Plan of British Aid

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP) Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin declared today that "President Roosevelt's great idea of paying for goods by goods will not only help to win the war but take us out of the hands of speculators at the end of the war."

This referring to the President's plan to lend arms to Britain was made in a luncheon address to the Foreign Press Ass'n. Bevin added:

"It is an indication that the President accepts the view that the greatest contribution to international stabilization at the end of the war is labor and effort and not speculation and manipulation of currency."

Bevin often is called the "strong man" of the British Labor party and has been mentioned as a possible successor to Prime Minister Churchill whenever one has to be chosen.

Among other things, Bevin said that the British Navy now is doing work which five navies did in the World War and that "everyone has now to be on one side or the other" in the conflict.

"At this moment, Britain and her allies are in the front line fighting this battle," he said.

"But we are only the front line. Everyone in the world is involved on one side or the other . . . there can be no neutrality between right and wrong.

"Great Britain is fighting for a principle which, when established finally, will govern the conduct of humanity for generations to come.

"The commonwealth idea on a basis of equality must be the basic principle of future security and prosperity in the world."

Duke Signs Bill For U. S. Base

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor signed a bill last night paving the way for transfer of land on Mayaguana Island to the United States, but told the Legislature there was some doubt the area would be chosen ultimately as a defense base site.

The Royal Governor said President Roosevelt told him last week that the President and his naval advisers had discovered possible geographical defects in Abraham's Bay, at Mayaguana, as an all-weather seaplane landing.

Roosevelt, the Duke said, declared that a Bahamian base definitely would be required, but that technical experts would investigate further before making a final selection.

The Duchess, fatigued by her trip home after undergoing a dental operation in Miami, did not attend the legislative session.

BRITISH SHELL VALONA

...nt of Dec. 18 and the sinking of the supply ships at Durazzo the day before, according to Admiralty communiques.

Vice-Admiral M. D. Pridham Wipple, veteran of World War operations in the Adriatic, commanded the Adriatic raiders which appeared to have made their assault in two phases.

While a cruiser and a screening destroyer force swept the lower sea, hunting fruitlessly for Italian battleships, the battleships bombarded not disclosed port area toward Valona.

The extent of damage at that Albanian port was not disclosed, but commentators declared that the "nearly 100 tons of high explosive shells" referred to by the Admiralty could make debris of docking facilities.

NEW DUNKIRK SEEN

Durazzo, Albanian port to the north of Valona, has considerably inferior facilities and even these have been subjected to repeated RAF bombardment.

London sources expressed belief that Italian forces in Albania were threatened with isolation worse than the encirclement of the British and French at Dunkirk because of Italy's naval failure to command the lower Adriatic.

Naval operations in support of the British offensive into Libya are continuing, the Admiralty said, with the fleet air arm co-operating with the RAF.

"Extensive fires" have been burning in Bardia since the afternoon of Dec. 15, the Admiralty said. The fires were described as having "assumed very large proportions on Dec. 17."

Choosing that day for a close-range attack on the port, after days of long-range bombardment, "light units"—presumably destroyers—drove into the inner harbor of Bardia "under heavy machine-gun fire" and destroyed three supply ships, according to the Admiralty.

OPPOSITION LIGHT

Italian batteries on the African shore "repeatedly engaged" British warships and on the afternoon of Dec. 16 Italian torpedoplanes "unsuccessfully attacked," the Admiralty communique said, adding, however:

"No hits were sustained by any of our forces."

The Admiralty emphasized that throughout the Adriatic penetration, as far north as the line between Bari and Durazzo, "no opposition from the enemy was encountered."

Bari is an important base in Italy, while Durazzo is Albania's main port, directly west of Tirana Albanian capital, and the key center for Italian supplies at the present time.

Churchill Sees Society Shift

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill was disclosed today to have pledged that when the war is over "advantages and privileges which hitherto have been enjoyed only by the few shall be far more widely shared."

The promise was made at Harrow, exclusive school where Churchill spoke Wednesday.

The prime minister quoted Adolf Hitler as saying Dec. 10 that "Eton College and the Hitler schools are two different worlds," and declared the Fuehrer had "overlooked the vast majority of the youth of this country who have never had the advantage of attending such schools as Eton and Harrow but who by their skill and prowess have won the admiration of the whole world."

"When this war is won, as it surely will be," Churchill declared, "it must be one of our aims to establish a state of society where the advantages and privileges which hitherto have been enjoyed by only the few shall be far more widely shared by the men and youth of the nation as a whole."

COMMUNITY FUND 1941 GOAL IS $4,883,000

Volunteer workers of the Greater Boston Community Fund today laid plans to raise $4,883,000, the goal set for the 1941 campaign, during a Dutch Treat Luncheon at the Boston City Club.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was Robert Cutler, president of Community Chests and Councils Inc., of New York.

He discussed the problem of furnishing Army and Navy men with recreational facilities outside military areas. This work should be supervised and financed by the government, rather than by private groups, he said.

The quota figure, according to Henry B. Gould, general chairman, is an increase of $250,000 over last year's active, and is "a minimum to be subscribed if everyone does heart and puts his shoulder to the wheel."

"The goal does not represent the amount necessary to meet in full the minimum needs of the 200 hospitals, health and social service agencies of the Greater Boston Community Fund," Gould said.

"But it does represent another step in the Community Fund's march toward its ultimate objective—that of raising each year an amount that will meet the fair requirements of our agencies which annually serve [illegible] people in 46 cities and towns of Greater Boston."

TYPICAL LONDON SHOPPING SCENE
No Ration Cards Needed at This Stand

but will serve as well.

Next comes the fish. There is certainly no lack of that here. There are piles of cod and sole, whole, filleted and cut in steaks. There are mountainous piles of buns. What is most striking is the display of tea cookies, cakes and pies.

You would think war had no real effect upon these things if you were making a quick tour, but we who live in London here as well as war can point out differences.

EGGS CONSERVED

Bakery confections which took many eggs have diminished in number. The splendid sugar icings have disappeared from both cakes and buns. There is no longer the heaping whipped cream decorations.

Cream fillings have given place to the corn starch kind. And where is the chocolate of yesterday? Coffee has taken its place as a flavoring.

One does not think long and wistfully about these missing things in the presence of the current display. It is too appetizing and one knows from experience it is rich enough and sweet enough for any purpose.

We choose a loaf of milk bread, a jelly roll, a squatish coffee loaf and a much decorated gateau. We spend the equivalent of half a dollar and are on our way to the vegetable and fruit market. It is just round the corner.

VARIETY OF VEGETABLES

Here are white stalks of celery, bundles of fat leeks, heaps of watercress, the first winter crop of radishes. Here are baskets of mushrooms and bins of potatoes.

Cabbages and cauliflower and big piles of Brussels sprouts are prominent, and one may choose of onion, fat "sweds," which belong to the turnip family but are much bigger. We serve them in half-inch slices, boiled and buttered, though the English usually mash them.

It is getting too late for vegetable marrow, but the market was full of that English variety of squash all summer. It is the popular summer vegetable.

Cucumbers a foot long are here, and there are still to be had tomatoes grown under glass. The latter would not ordinarily interest us, for we have them growing in our own hothouse at most times. Just now, however, a bomb has spoiled that. Tomatoes that live in glass houses should beware of the blitz-brigs.

ON THE FRUIT SIDE

On the fruit side are cooking apples, eating apples, dessert plums and big brownish pears. It is late now for the more yellow softer pears. There are still Jaffa oranges from Palestine. But lemons are few and expensive and bananas are disappearing.

The English grocer supplies not only the vegetables for the soup and entree but the after dinner nuts, too. Here they are, walnuts, filberts and big Kent cobs and, strangely enough, lots o' Brazil nuts which certainly do not grow in England.

We make our selections and stow away our vegetables nude, for the paper shortage does not allow paper sacks; but who cares?

Next stop is at the fishmongers. Here we find Dover and lemon sole, plaice, bream, hake herring and cod. The Scotch salmon is too expensive to interest one who used to live near the Columbia river.

HERRING RUNS OUT

Fat herring, lately kippered, used to be a drug on the market but it sometimes runs out these days. One can substitute smoked haddock however.

The oysters are in season but are expensive and not very good. Shrimps are a treat. We find them too much trouble to dig out or shell. And Whitstable oysters at several shillings a dozen have little appeal to one who dreams of Chincoteagues and the fat big New Orleans variety.

But we waste time. There'll be guests tomorrow. We have to obtain some unrationed main meat dish, so we move along to the poulteters and stand thoughtfully eyeing his resplendent pheasants, softly colored wood doves, grouse, ducks, geese and cockens. Nearby are hanging large rabbits suggesting toothsome fricassees.

The choice is hard to make, for fish, fowl and rabbit come on the menu with great frequency these days. We decide to have one of them but make a special trip to another market district where we can get thick venison steaks to broil.

They are not rationed, except by their price and this being a special occasion, that will not stop us.

Our regular grocer, with whom we are registered for the rationed commodities doles out the bacon, sugar and butter. We pick up some Cheddar, Cheshire and Chilvern cheese, since one can no longer get the continental varieties.

We also wheedle three precious eggs out of our grocer who does what he can for his registered customers. Then we return to the bus stop for our three ha'pence ride back home.

How London carries on in the midst of Nazi bombings, the people unbelievably calm throughout their great ordeal, is described in Milo M. Thompson's sixth article in tomorrow's American.

LAVAL'S ENEMIES MAY GO

BERLIN, Saturday, Dec. 21 (AP) — Bench chief of State Pierre Laval was expected in diplomatic circles here today to be consulting with [illegible] Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and other leaders of Nazi Germany on internal and foreign matters.

Reports of another "purge," perhaps even more drastic than the one which ousted Laval, came from Vichy, where Pierre Etienne Flandin, Premier of the French government before Germany occupied Paris and an adherent friend of Laval, was reported to have given to the French government the German views on Laval's removal.

APPEASEMENT OFFER

Flandin, returned to Paris, following a visit to Berlin, was said to have told members of Petain's cabinet that Germany, during the course of [illegible] Laval's removal, had made an offer to appease France.

Berlin reports were that Otto Abetz, German ambassador to Paris, had insisted in Vichy that Laval be returned to the cabinet in some post.—Editor's Note.

Diplomatic circles said there may be changes in a number of [illegible] Marshal Petain [illegible] Minister of Foreign Affairs Fernand de Brinon, [illegible] Rene Belin, minister of industrial production

Pierre Caziot, minister of agriculture.

Diplomatic advices said it still was the view of the [illegible] Laval was ousted out of the cabinet he would do the utmost to "get him," Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton.

German friends were said here [illegible] to [illegible] not lost the will to give his job to Laval.

STRONG POSITION

Peyrouton, however, was believed to stand on an excellent [illegible] Chief of Vichy, not only as a result of power but as a man close to the Marshal. Weygand and Gen. Charles Huntziger, the minister of war.

[illegible] persons here said they considered it as certain that Laval, despite [illegible] German approval [illegible] "supremacy" would never get back [illegible] as long as Petain held the position as chief of state.

All Finland Mourns Kallio

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 20 (AP) — All Finland went into mourning today for peasant-born Kyosti Kallio who became the republic's president.

Flags were half-staffed and public dancing, singing and other entertainments were banned as marks of respect for Kallio who died of a heart attack yesterday at a resort station as he was preparing to leave for the peace and quiet of his country estate.

Kallio, whose illness forced him to step down from the presidency Nov. 24 after he had led Finland in her fight against Russia, was present yesterday when Prime Minister Risto Ryti was elected to fill out the unexpired term ending in 1943.

Cheered by thousands, he then went to the station, collapsed and died almost at once. His friends said the excitement and physical strain incident to his departure were contributing causes of his death. He was 67.

His widow, a sculptor son Kalervo and two married daughters survive.

ABOLISH ELECTIONS, AIM

The Boston Bar Association was [illegible] today of a bill to [illegible] Boston Common abolishing elections for clerks of courts in the [illegible] Such a bill would have to be approved at two sessions of the Legislature and then be submitted to a popular vote.

SIDELIGHTS ON QUAKE IN N. E.

in Terrace rd., Medford, crumpled up like a toothpick structure in a gale.

One man in Brookline called the police to complain that this business of dogs barking had to stop. "Tonight it was worse than ever," he said. "I can't understand why you let these things go on." (Nobody told the dogs there was a quake.)

Firemen in Hartford, Ct., who had just gotten to sleep after a series of tussles with blazes from overheated chimneys, were probably as peeved as anyone in the six New England states.

Folks in Concord, N. H., said the telephone poles were waving around like poplar trees in a northcaster.

Paul Whelton, Boston Evening American writer, who lives in Braintree, was sound asleep when his telephone rang. It was the American calling.

"Come on in and write the earthquake story," he was told. "What earthquake?" said Paul. "You'll see," was the answer. He did.

Springfield district telephone lines took a beating. Fuses blew in the two downtown offices and for a while communications were cut off with towns like Palmer, Longmeadow and Feeding Hills.

Dartmouth College boys in Hanover, N. H., saw a lot of their prize trophies go tumbling down off the shelves, but reported the ski championship cups stayed in their places.

Providence, R. I., reported that the tall buildings in the city center swayed for a matter of minutes after the main shock. At Portland, Me., Police Lieut. William Long matched that.

"Our three-story building shook like a leaf," he said.

First bulletin from the Associated Press stated mildly: "An earth tremor was felt today over a wide area in New England." But you ought to see the flashes that followed in the next few seconds!

It was a bad night for the A.D.T. In case the initials baffle you, that's the American District Telegraph system which maintains such excellent burglar alarm service.

"The bells didn't stop ringing once," a weary worker in the main office exaggerated.

A Lexington bride who must be nameless was about as cross as anyone could be.

"Bill and I just had the dinner dishes paid for and three of my precious cream soups were cracked," she said.

Leo Walsh, surfman at the Nahant Coast Guard station, got the log out as soon as things settled down. "Tower shaken as if by an earthquake," he noted.

Even from Block Island, 30 miles off the Rhode Island coast, residents reported they felt as if they were adrift in a small boat with a gale blowing.

Now it's your turn.

Donovan Finds English Confident

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Col. William Donovan, who is in London on an undisclosed mission, told a press conference today:

"After my visit here in August, I said back home that I found in this country determination, resolution and valor. Now I would add confidence to the list."

ITALIAN SHIPYARD BURNS

ROME, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Baglietto shipyard at Varazze, where small, fast torpedo boats are built, was reported today to have suffered heavy damage from flames which started in the woodworking department and spread to the machine shop.

HARVARD SCIENTIST TELLS CAUSE OF EARTHQUAKE HERE

Today's earthquake centering in the Lake region at the foot of the mighty White Mountain range and was believed to have been caused by a shifting of the criss-cross network of planes of weakness in the earth's strata.

"All of these planes at present," said Dr. L. Don Leet, director of the Harvard University seismograph station, "are several miles below the earth's surface, blanketed by the glacial drift of the great ice age.

"Where there is a shifting of segments of these planes, in which gigantic forces are exerted, the vibrations of this movement travel through the ground for great distances in much the same manner as ripples spread from a pebble dropped into a pool of water. The difference, of course, is that the earth tremors travel below the surface.

"There is no surface fault in this zone of quake activity, as there is in the Bay of Fundy, on the Pacific Coast and in various other parts of the world. Therefore they are harder to trace. Also, they cause less damage as a rule.

ONLY ONE SHOCK

"In today's quake several people have reported they felt several shocks. There was only one shock, but there were several resultant waves of vibrations of different types, each of which travels at a different speed.

"Therefore, as the shock progressed farther fro mits point of origin, some of these waves, traveling faster than the others, were felt first, while the slower waves were felt later, thus producing the effect of more than one shock.

"Although this earthquake is classified in the category of minor shocks, it is the most violent shock recorded in recent history with its origin in New England.

"New England had an earthquake about five years ago, but the center of that one was in Canada. It was several times larger than this one and was a major quake.

HUB QUAKE IN 1775

"The last major earthquake which had its center in New England occurred in 1775, with its center apparently on the floor of the ocean off Boston.

"It was a real bad one, so bad that if some of the buildings of today were standing then, real damage would have been done.

"I have read old newspaper clippings about pastors preaching in their pulpits that the wrath of God had descended on mankind.

"Origin of that earthquake probably was on an extension of the so-called Fundy fault.

"Whether today's quake will be followed by others is difficult to determine. It may be that this quake was only the forerunner of a much more severe quake to come. Or it may only be followed by a series of minor after shocks.

ICE AGE CITED

"However, since the last major earthquake occurred in New England in 1755, some of us scientists have been wondering whether this section may not be due for another bad quake.

"Though it is significent that today's shock and a long series of minor shocks recorded during the past seven years have occurred in the Winnepesaukee region, it is unlikely that the tremendous weight force of the White Mountain range has a direct bearing on the causes.

"The reason for that is that the forces which created the White Mountain range, oldest in the United States, were exerted millions upon millions of years ago.

"Contrasted to this, the forces which we believe are responsible for the earthquakes, emanate from the great ice age, which occurred a mere 30,000 years ago."

industrial areas wavered like moving fingers.

With the first, and major shock, lights went out in houses in street after street of the quake area—and within minutes newspaper offices and police stations were swamped with excited calls of inquiry.

In many hospitals, patients were aroused as the beds shook. At Boston City Hospital, doctors, nurses and orderlies went from bed to bed, reassuring those who had become alarmed.

Within a few minutes after the quake was first felt, newspaper offices, police and fire stations, telegraph offices and other types of establishments with all-night communications systems that make them information sources were swamped with telephone calls from New England asking what had happened.

FINALLY CONVINCED

Although most of them realized that what had awakened them probably was an earthquake, there were many who believed a violent explosion had occurred in their neighborhood.

Even Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, the Massachusetts state ballistics expert, was taken in by the sharpness of the earth tremor. Telephoning one of his friends on the Boston Evening American, Capt. Van Amburgh said he had been awakened at his home in Wakefield.

"That was an earthquake," he was informed.

"All right," he reported, "never mind the gags now. Where was the explosion?"

Finally he was convinced, but he said it was the sharpest shock of that type that he had ever experienced.

In numerous cases, and far-separated areas, persons reported that they were thrown from their beds, and in one instance a baby was shaken out of its crib.

One of the most exciting places not to have been during the seconds of the tremors was in the communications office of the Coast Guard, situated on the 20th floor of the Boston Customs House.

Officers on duty said the tower distinctly swayed and it was a very queasy feeling to have the floor suddenly rubbery under foot—particularly at that helpless height.

But in a few seconds the first intense shock had come and gone, and there was no damage except to blood pressure.

Persons living in upper floors of apartment and tenement buildings had similar experiences, and once many of them were aroused by the quake and up out of bed many elected to remain up.

A number of those who called the newspaper offices said they were of this mind, indicating an early start in today's activities in New England.

Several callers asking for information said their beloved Aunt Sarah or hurricane was in the middle.

A short wave radio operator contacting his fellow "hams" through the northeast area, was told by one short waver in Vermont that residents in a town there were fleeing their homes as a result of the tremblors.

BAY STATE DAMAGE

When police were checked, however, they said they had no such reports and that they did not believe there was any departure from homes except possibly in isolated instances.

Although the epicenter of the quake was in the area of Oswego and the principal damage was in New Hampshire, its intensity was also accompanied by damage in central and western Massachusetts.

Numerous communities in this section reported disruption of some telephone and wire communications with emergency crews sent out to restore service, but this was denied by the telephone and telegraph companies.

Plaster fell off hotel walls in Springfield and some residents in that terrain said the violence of the quake was such that they were nearly tumbled from their beds.

In the Worcester area, police received reports that frightened householders, awakened by the rumblings, had rushed into the street scantily clad.

Police and newspaper offices said it seemed as if all of Worcester's 200,000 residents were telephoning at once in an attempt to learn what had so rudely awakened them.

At Hartford the quake was felt so intensely that the greater part of the sleeping population popped right out of it, to run to their telephones.

Some reported that the tremor had been so severe that they had been thrown out of bed.

The quake set off one burglar alarm in that city and one apartment house was practically cleared of occupants in all manner of undress.

Amateur radio operators, who appear never to sleep, had a field day because of the quake.

One of them, James Robb of Bow st., Woburn, was talking to Stephen Jona of Hartford when Robb felt his home shaking and had the sensation of sitting on a chair made of sponge rubber.

HOUSE SHAKES

At the same time he heard Jona's voice saying over the 20-meter phones:

"Hey, what's going on here? My house is shaking."

They agreed that it was an earthquake and signed off. Within a few minutes Robb had successively contacted Harold Beane of Penacook, N. H., and Philip Baker

Flood of Yule Mail Swamps Hub Postoffice

One of the heavest day's traffic of the year was expected in the Boston postal district today as augmented crews struggled with a 24-hour flood of 8,000,000 pieces of mail.

Postmaster Peter F. Tague hired 3000 extra carriers, clerks and laborers and expects to hire as many again if the public response continues.

Mail must be deposited on or before Sunday to insure delivery by Christmas, the postmaster warned.

Quake Hits N. E., Sways Buildings

of New Britain, Ct., and these two reported similar experiences and sensations.

Residents of Manchester, N. H., reported that the quake was accompanied by a heavy rumbling, resembling the rumbling of trucks rolling along a closeby highway.

At Keene, N. H., an inspection of the central police station some time after the quake revealed that one wall had cracked slightly as the structure was shaken.

Several residents in Newton reported falling out of bed and at the new South Boston housing project, near Old Harbor Village, the night watchman reported that telephones were knocked from his office desk.

BRICKS FALL

Elsewhere in South Boston, bricks were reported shaken from chimneys and old buildings, with china, household utensils and telephone instruments jarred from their places to the floor.

Meanwhile Michael F. Powers, radio despatcher at Boston Police Headquarters, reported that the White building in Berkeley st. "waved like a flag in a breeze."

He said, however, that the delicate radio and teletype apparatus suffered no damage from the rocking of the structure.

Many persons in the Nahant section complained of slight feelings of nausea after the quake, and said all buildings there had been shaken considerably.

On Beacon Hill a number of residents who were aroused by the quake but who had no telephones at which to leap, hastily pulled on a few added garments and padded over to Joy st. police station to learn what had happened.

For a time with a motley-garbed array in the accident station, the place looked as if the police had just pulled a raid and brought in a batch of surprised prisoners.

Among the many telephone inquirers at newspaper offices and police stations were residents in areas where arsenals or ammunition depots are located—such as the Springfield Arsenal, the Watertown Arsenal and the naval ammunition depot at Hingham.

These callers feared that an explosion had occurred at some such plant.

BROCKTON PUZZLED

Meanwhile Brockton police reported a pretty little perplexity, such as apparently arose in no other community in the whole quake area.

The only calls of inquiry they received, said Brockton police, were from excited or anxious residents of the West side of town.

Puzzled over this apparent phenomenon, police sent cruiser cars to other sections and were even more baffled when the cruisers came back and reported no sudden lights in houses in those blank areas.

Linotype operators in newspaper plants all over New England, getting out late editions of morning papers or first editions of evening sheets, were somewhat surprised when their machines began to sway.

Water in drinking coolers slapped against the sides of the glass bottles, much as the sea waves when a storm is making up.

Throughout eastern New York State the quake was felt in strength. Hundreds were awakened in homes along the Hudson and Mohawk Valleys and all 90 patients in the Glens Falls Hospital were aroused, as well as patients in Utica Hospital.

DAMAGE SLIGHT

Dr. Benjamin Boss of the Dudley Observatory in Albany said the shock there was of "fairly good proportions" for the area, although reports indicated that the damage was but slight.

Residents of Barre, Vt., said the quake was accompanied by "a roar."

In far-off Syosset, Long Island, a policeman hastened down cellar in the station in belief that the heater had blown up and was puzzled when he found it operating as usual.

In Bangor, and elsewhere along the Maine shore line, the shocks were felt distinctly, lessening as the line progressed up through New Brunswick.

TODAY'S QUAKE RECALLS PACIFIC COAST DISASTER IN 1906

San Francisco—Shaken by an earthquake and swept by fires, San Francisco looked like this in 1906 . . . far different from Boston today which felt a slight temblor which shook a few dishes, cracked a few ceilings.

Calling England . . . and Home

Tearful Interlude—Just a little upset by the sudden realization that at last she was going to speak to "home", little Rosemary Leigh of Sedlescombe, Sussex, cried a little as she and 12 other British refugee children talked to England and home over the radio.

Sobs of Rosemary Is Poignant Music

By AUSTEN LAKE

Only Rosemary Leigh wept. The other 12 English children sat, dry-eyed, wondering and mildly perplexed as the announcer of station WRUL took the starting nod from his technician and began, "Hello England." The tiny, straw-curled child shook with silent sobs. "Hello England," said Vaughan Taylor, "This is Hingham in the U. S. A. calling Hingham abroad."

Rosemary wept, but the other 12 stood around the green baize table mouths agape, as the announcer continued, glibly

"Th's is a series of intercoeanic broadcasts . . ." Little exiles for safety's sake lads in knickers, knitted jumper ' rd close cro-ped crowns, girls in braids or bobs and frocks and pinafores

BIRT-LIKE LILT

Their voices when they spoke had a bird like lilt But Rosemary wept, with tear dribbles on an ' flamed nose little larger than a vest button

"We send our warmest seasonal greetings to the people of England," intoned Vaughan, his professional eye wandering from the fifth story window to the University Club and over the neighboring chimney pots.

Some of the lots, fascinated by the suggestion in his voice, followed his gaze, half expecting to see the familiar moors, the hawthorne hedge rows the spires and rose brick cottages England

But there were only the roof tops and the thin murmur of late afternoon traffic. A newsboy's voice rose in a ribbon of sound, "Reed't," he cried

No, not England!

Rosemary wept, hiding her face in the hollow of sister Cherry's shoulder. And Cherry grinned by way of compensation, blue eyes a-dance as the headmaster of Derby Academy, Hingham, Mass., read a scholarly essay—a youngish, sandy-haired man who spoke solemnly ". . . we admire the staunch defence your country is making against the forces of oppression and hatred."

FAITH IN EYES

Sober faith lit the eyes of the 12, as spike-bearded Professor John Scammel figured his notes and watched for the announcer's cue. 'Oppression and hatred' forsooth! Incomprehensible words.

"You may be sure that we are giving these young countrymen of yours—in care, in schooling," the headmaster's voice articulated clearly ". . . and 'n homely affection . . ."

Rosemary wept, for she was a tiny bundle in need of sheltering arms But the 12 stood transfixed as the mellow voice rolled on:

". . . Christmas and safekeeping in sympathetic homes . . . to you, amid peril, across the seas . . . the cry of human brotherhood . . ."

This, in the cramped, soundproof enclosure, where curious eyes peered through observation windows and press photographers flashed their bulbs, was America. But there, in the other end of the

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS in a recent survey brings home to all Americans the frightful meaning of war.

Here are some COLD FACTS for our digestion.

The six major nations of the world are spending at the rate of FIFTY BILLION DOLLARS annually for arms.

Great Britain is spending TWENTY BILLION DOLLARS each year.

This is as much as all the 47,000,000 people of the United Kingdom earned in a pre-war period of 12 months.

EIGHTY-FIVE PER CENT of all that Britain spends in a year is going for war purposes.

Nearly one-fourth of Canada's total national income is going into the war-furnace.

The United States has SEVENTEEN BILLION DOLLARS appropriated for war purposes.

This is more than a FOURTH of our bona-fide national income.

If we should be forced into this conflict our yearly expenses for war would probably equal two-thirds, if not FOUR-FIFTHS, of our national income.

It would mean eventually a debt of approximately ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY BILLION DOLLARS.

That is a debt that could NEVER be paid.

These figures spell only universal bankruptcy, revolutions, famine and a recession to the Dark Ages.

Europe and Asia, already bankrupt, are on the edge of chaos.

SHALL WE FOLLOW?

The people have said NO!

Common sense says NO!

The unborn cry out to us, NO!

And for this reason:

When ALL is destroyed who is the winner?

But if we stay out, we WIN!—We win that which all the world longs for—peace, prosperity, and, above all, we preserve our liberties.

These facts and figures add emphasis to the advice of General Thomas S. Hammond, World War veteran and present chairman of the Chicago chapter of the America First Committee.

The General truthfully says:

"The fast talkers with the high temperatures are the ones who get us into war—but your sons and husbands are the ones who do the shooting and the dying."

GLAMOROUS BLONDES used to carry off the prizes in the matrimonial race—that is, if one placed credence in the opinions of novelists.

Brunettes and red-heads were definitely in the background, so far as Cupid was concerned.

MRS. BOYLE WITH BABY DAUGHTER
She Prefers Motherhood to Flying

The girl with the golden locks "captured" the coveted gentleman and her darker sisters had to be satisfied with the "consolation awards."

That is changed now.

Today, a young woman's job counts more than her complexion.

This is indicated by a study of careers of American Airline stewardesses.

Each year approximately one hundred girls begin work as flying hostesses and within the next two years more than half of them are married.

And the surprising thing about it all is the fact that few wed millionaires or well-to-do passengers they meet aboard planes.

Instead, most stewardesses become the wives of pilots, engineers and other men employed in the air transportation industry.

Almost without exception, they become model housekeepers and mothers, like Mrs. Leo P. Boyle, the former stewardess who is pictured herewith, holding her baby daughter.

Hundreds of women are therefore going to ask: WHY DO MEN PREFER GIRLS WHO FLY?

The answer is probably that airlines engage only young women who are attractive and have sparkling personalities.

They delight the eye and please the ear.

Few bachelors can resist that combination.

-:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Thursday—Every day I receive new ideas for ways in which we can help the British people. One is novel and interesting, and should be an outlet for some of our young people. The All-American football team has been asked to be chairman of the football blankets and hoods committee of Bundles for Britain.

The Bundles for Britain organization and the English Speaking Union will be glad to receive contributions of discarded hoods and blankets at the Jefferson Hotel, Richmond, Virginia. They will be sent to London for use by the people in the bomb cellars. They ask you to leave on your school or college colors, because they may add a bit of cheer to times and conditions which must be a drab and uncomfortable part of existence.

Just before lunch yesterday, Her Royal Highness, the Princess Juliana, with Admiral-Baron and Baroness De Vos Van Steenwyk, her gentleman and lady-in-waiting, arrived. They are delightful guests and I only hope they are not being worn out by our usual effort to show them more than they probably desire to see.

PRINCESS JULIANA is deeply interested in the Red Cross, and this morning she has gone to our Red Cross building. Yesterday afternoon we drove to Mount Vernon and she seemed to enjoy the country and the novel experience of trying to understand what an old-time American plantation was like in the 1700's. The scent of the box in the garden was noticed at once and enjoyed, when we walked through on our way back to the cars.

The Princess Juliana joined me in receiving the foreign students in the afternoon. The two Dutch students, who had last been presented to her in Holland two years ago, were, of course, greatly pleased to see her here.

She remarked afterward on the interesting faces of the young people as they went by, and was much impressed by the four who were interviewed on the radio. It was rather thrilling to see the first girl graduate as a doctor in Haiti. She is here studying gynecology and will then return to serve the women of her own island.

In the evening, we attended the concert given by the National Symphony Orchestra, with Dr. Hans Kindler conducting. As a special attention to the princess, the orchestra played a well-known Dutch song. Mr. Joseph Szigeti, who appeared as the guest artist, is, of course, a great violinist and we all enjoyed the concert very much.

At about 12:30 this morning I took our guests to see the President in his office and then we had an informal luncheon. Later in the afternoon the princess will go to her own legation to attend a reception.

NOEL COWARD PLANS EARLY RETURN

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—The Normandie will be moved to a Staten Island pier, because the rent is too high in Manhattan . . . The Duchess of Windsor has "suggested" to one of the news associations that two of the reporters who interviewed the Windsors at Nassau would not be entirely welcome again . . . Contrary to the recent report, Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, the noted psychoanalyst, didn't accompany Ralph Ingersoll to a night club to analyze one of the entertainers. The man for whom Dr. Zilboorg was mistaken was Tom Fizdale . . . All the money being earned here by Somerset Maugham is forwarded to Britain, less his living expenses . . . Noel Coward will return to N. Y. from Australia next month . . . George Cukor has extended a film offer to Lady Ashley, widow of Douglas Fairbanks.

RACKET: Dr. Menas Gregory, the Bellevue psychiatrist, once revealed this story at the home of Konrad Bercovici . . . A patient afflicted with a mad impulse to utter dirty words came to a psychiatrist friend of Dr. Gregory's. He agreed to pay the $25-per-visit fee. After five visits the psychiatrist asked him where all this money was coming from, and the patient explained that he was an investor in the stock market and had access to many good investments which showed quick returns . . . "Next time you get a good tip," suggested the psychiatrist, "let me know." He invested $4,000 with the patient and never saw him again. The "patient" worked this trick on four psychiatrists secure in the knowledge that none of them would care to make a complaint.

FOOD: Groucho Marx met a noted theatrical figure, who told of having lunched at the White House recently . . . "But you—you who voted for Willkie," asked Groucho, "why do you go to the White House so often?" . . . "I can't help it," was the reply. "They have the only good food in Washington."

Last Thursday Arthur Kober—who wrote "Thunder Over the Bronx" and "Having Wonderful Time"—was invited to lecture there and accepted. The invitation explained that he had been selected as an expert on The Bronx . . . Kober made his speech to an impatient audience. He arrived more than an hour late. Because he got lost.

OPINION: Bobby Clark is one of the most conservative men in the theater. As far back as when Clark & McCullough first started Bobby always was reluctant to deliver overstrong expressions and confined himself instead to simple declarations tinged with a bit of humor . . . Last week at the Friars Club Bobby Clark delivered an oration attacking one of the members. He used fearsome invective and used all the descriptives collected in his years of trouping . . . "And if you think I'm biased," said the Clark, "just discount 1 per cent of my talk."

LESSON: W. S. Van Dyke, the movie director, prefers gin to other drinks. Bernard Hyman, the producer, doesn't drink at all. When he visited Van Dyke at the studio he prearranged with one of the underlings that if Van Dyke should order gin for him, water should be substituted in his glass. Then he seated himself next to the director, who invited him to drink. "Sure," Hyman agreed, "I'll have some gin with you" . . . "That's strong stuff, I'm warning you," said Van Dyke, and ordered the drinks. Hyman drank his—the substituted water—and suggested: "This is good. Let's have another" . . . The startled director agreed and gulped his gin, while Hyman sipped his water. Once more they drank, and then Hyman rose to leave, tripped over a wire and fell sprawling. "See?" said Van Dyke. "And don't say I didn't warn you."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: If talented and versatile Ginger Rogers had happened to do her acting in "Kitty Foyle" a few weeks earlier, the one-time partner of Fred Astaire might well have crashed the list of the first (big) ten motion picture stars . . . Word seeps in from Hollywood that the Rogers girl is excellent

BUT "KITTY FOYLE" HAS BEEN previewed only, and the all-male flavor of the ten best box-office bets is relieved only by the presence of Bette Davis . . . Nevertheless, the cute Ginger will be leading the popularity poll of her own studio (RKO) when the rating is released.

GEORGIE RAFT'S APPEARANCE will hold him in Boston eight days . . . Then, if his agents will relax the pressure a bit on their glistening patent-leather meal-ticket, Georgie will fly South for a few days to be present at the new Raft-backed nightclub at Miami Beach . . . George owns half of the New York cabaret, The Hurricane, and has an interest in the Hollywood Pirate's Den.

ANN CORIO HAS NEVER WORKED on the stage Christmas Week . . . Not, at any rate, since she rose to stardom in burlesque . . . Ann has been the Lady Beautiful each Christmas-time—for many years—of the Veterans' Hospital in Newington, Ct., and this Yuletide will be no exception . . . Miss Corio is really serious in her intentions to "troupe" the New England summer theaters in 1941.

IT MIGHT BE SOME ENCOURAGEMENT to Ann's legitimate theater ambitions to hear that June Havoc, sister of that other eminent burlesque queen, Gypsy Rose Lee, actually stole the show at the Philadelphia premiere of "My Pal Joey," new Rodgers and Hart (and John O'Hara) musical comedy . . . Miss Havoc (nee Hovick) played The Mayfair two seasons ago, but she was no noticeable sensation at the time.

THE QUALITY OF HER UNEXPECTED hit in "My Pal Joey" is unquestionably high, however . . . Variety says she "stopped the show cold" twice . . . Her dancing and singing both were described as "terrific" . . . At the Versailles, an excellent comedian, Sammy Walsh, is helping along the popularity of that gilded spot . . . Sheila Barrett started the trend toward popularity of the Versailles, and a continuance of good booking is expected to lift the one-time Southland out of the red.

A BUSINESS MAN (BUT NOT A 'stage business man") and a gentleman of great aplomb, with as fast a wit as Georgie Jessel, is blooming in our very midst . . . A first-rate comedian without, unfortunately, the chance to turn his fine talent to commercial account . . . He is Jack Herbert, a rage in certain suburban circles . . . The young man is handsome, to beg in with.

HIS 'ROUTINES' ARE distinguished and fresh and his style is new . . . As the master-of-ceremonies of a "class" spot, he should be hugely successful . . . The Herbert style is so superior to the "Give the little girl a great big hand" type of master-of-ceremonizing (which was born with poor Texas Guinan's conquest of New York and continues to persist) that it would be sad for the professional opposition if Mr. Herbert ever relinquished his amateur standing . . . Most of these parlor comics don't quite come off when transferred to the pay-salons . . . We feel sure that Mr. Herbert would

REPORT BEERY WINS HIGH POLL RATING

By Loucila O. Parsons

Wallace Beery

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20—Gossip along the grapevine is that Wallace Beery, surprising as it may sound, rates one of the first ten in the Motion Picture Herald poll. Metro gets five out of the ten and they rank like this: Mickey Rooney is again first, Clark Gable second, Spencer Tracy third, Judy Garland seventh and Beery eighth. Somewhere in there are Tyrone Power, Bette Davis, Errol Flynn and Bob Hope. 'Tis said Gene Autry will also figure.

What happens to Deanna Durbin, whose "Spring Parade" was doing great business in every city where we played and whose "It's a Date" was one of the top pictures of the early year? What happens to James Stewart and Cary Grant, who have had three or four smash hits? What about Ginger Rogers? Well, there's always an argument—but I still say Deanna should be in the first ten.

HERE'S A SURPRISE: Bette Davis, no less steps into the Olivia De Havilland role in "The Bride Came C. O. D." What a time Bette had getting permission from Jack Warner and Hal Wallis to play in what is really a James Cagney picture. Jack felt that she and Cagney should have their individual starring pictures but Bette out-talked him. "What do I care"? Bette said to me. "If Jimmy has the bigger role, just so the picture is good. I like the story and I want to play in a comedy." So she reports for work Jan. 3. If more stars were as sensible as Bette they would last longer.

WHENEVER Walter Abel's name used to creep into dinner table conversations everyone always said what a swell actor he is—but he just didn't seem to get a chance. Then along came "Arise, My Love"—just what the doctor ordered. The able Mr. Abel had all the critics talking about him—and the fans, too. Well, the news about Walter this morning is that Para is reuniting the three stars of "Arise, My Love" in "Skylark," which means that Claudette will be the wife, Ray Milland the husband and Abel the other man. Paramount believes in these repeat casts for they're also teaming Brian Donlevy and Akim Tamiroff (of "Great McGinty" fame) in another "Bay Me That Town."

The usher seeing the commotion came and asked Chico for his name which he gave. Today the Chinese Theater and Chico were both sued for $10,000 by the stranger who claims he was hurt.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: While I was on tour I received many questions asking me to give the name of Mickey Rooney's next girl friend. I answered "Mickey's playing the field." Well, for the first time Mickey Rooney has really fallen hard and the girl is Ava Gardner.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Olivia De Havilland, who said adieu to Jimmy Stewart some time ago, now has Eddie Albert talking to himself. Hedy Lamarr and John Howard are no longer seen together. His heart beat is now Wanda Mackay. They were cooing at the Hollywood Trocadero. Tom Harmon, the All-American, who found Marjorie Weaver so attractive, will be the house guest of Reg Gomez after he plays in San Francisco on New Year's Day. The Johnny Weissmullers are taking their brood to San Francisco to spend Christmas with Mrs. Weissmuller's mother—and all is strictly free.

JOAN CRAWFORD gets home Sunday, one of the most successful dinner parties in a long time was given by Orry Kelly. It was Ann Warner's birthday and Sylvia Fairbanks' sister, Mrs. Black's wedding anniversary. Mrs. Black's husband is in the R. A. F. She received a cable from him and a telephone call from Sylvia, who is in New York; Elinor Boardman D'Arrast says that her husband, Harry D'Arrast, has his passport and she expects him soon.

REFUGEES TALK TO ENGLAND

voice, 3000 miles away, was England and parents, perhaps, listening with cupped ears to catch some word, some lisping syllable. The 12 stood straight, but Rosemary wept—a small symbol of sorrow, the soft capsule of conscience.

The interlocutor, Professor Scammell took up the thread with fatherly, coaxing tones, inviting each mite to approach the nickled nozzle in turn. It was a simple, affecting colloquy.

"This is David Douglas," wheedled the Professor casually.

A wispy 12-year-old of Ealing, near London, shouldered his way to the table and chatted about his preference for English cream buns over American doughnuts.

"I miss the cream buns," he said seriously, while the other children squealed with nervous laughter.

It was a shy, monosyllabic conversation mostly about food—piping, querulous trebles about the advantage of ginger beer over ginger ale with a concession toward American ice cream.

Ice cream was impressive! Turkey and Thanksgiving was a novelty, too, and Mildred Kennard, of Portland sq., London, with parallel scratches of a pet rabbit on her cheek, told articulately about the bountiful tables where pumpkin tarts hob nobbed with cranberry jam and slivers of the great golden roast bird were served with stewed globules of onion.

SHOCKING COST!

Far away, through the ether miles, English ears were listening as Gerald Fishe, a larger boy, complained mildly about the high cost of American padlocks. Shocking! And Joan Marion White, 12, of Farnborough, England, lectured sturdily on the curious custom of building houses of wood. Yet Joan found the Hingham countryside quite akin to her native Yorkshire.

It was Cherry Leigh's turn now and she released Rosemary gently, leaving moist blobs of tear dew on her blue frock and glancing maternally over her shoulder as she stood primly in place. Her answers were soft, lingering "yesses" that lisped and "noes" that frisked her curls. Home was England and somewhere at home her daddy was an officer in the Royal Sussex regiment—daughter of calamity.

Derek Dale-Glasson, politely, was pleased with American bacon because it was cooked crisply and he liked the crunchy taste and the feel of curled edges against his tongue. John Wright thought football fun, but confusing, and sister Doreen thought the trains were immense. And so it went, until the twelve had had their little say while Rosemary wept.

Other children taking part in the broadcast were Dinna Crane 11, of Dolphin sq., London; John Pope, 10, and his sister, Margaret Ann, 7, of Surbiton; John Wright, 11, and his sister, Doreen Wright, 8, of Oxford.

CHRISTMAS WORD

And in the end they came again, briskly for some little Christmas word to their beleaguered home, each in a singsong chirp, "Hello everyone and a merry Christmas to all," with occasional American innovations like David Douglas's "How you doin'" and Gerald Fishe's "Hope you don't have too many one-ton eggs."

A few spoke simple greeting to "mommy and daddy" and Jan Kennard, 11, of London said pertly, "How the air raids going?" a half-shy flamboyance that was intended to show aplomb.

And presently the half hour ended with the transcribed music of "God Save the King" through a wall speaker while the children turned and looked wistfully.

God save the kids!

24 Trucks Damaged in Fire

Twenty-four loaded grocery trucks and the J. C. Driscoll Transportation Co. garage were damaged in a $25,000 Somerville fire today while 16 persons fled a two-alarm blaze in Revere, six in thrilling escapes down aerial ladders.

Flames flashed through the Driscoll garage with incredible speed after an explosion in the company's office in Broadway, Somerville.

Within a few seconds, masses of flames swept through the entire length of the one-story building and poured through windows at the rear, on Mystic ave. One after another in quick succession, gasoline tanks of the trailer trucks exploded, to send fresh quantities of flames and sparks into the air.

Dazed by the first blast, the night watchman, Alfred H. McMillan, was rescued by Patrolmen Thomas McGann and Timothy Corkery of Somerville. Firemen and police were constantly endangered by flying glass as the numerous explosions occurred.

Fire Chief John C. McNally ordered a general alarm when the flames threatened many nearby houses in the congested area on the Somerville-Charlestown line.

$3,000,000 Tax Suits Dismissed by U. S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP) — The federal court today dismissed 74 suits against the Collector of Internal Revenue brought by corporations to avoid payment of $3,000,000 under the capital stock tax law.

The suits, brought by companies including the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and several major meat packing firms, alleged the law was unconstitutional.

Hope of Finding Bodies In Dragger Is Given Up

All hope for recovery of the bodies of four fishermen was abandoned today after a diver searched the sunken dragger Frances off Race Point, Provincetown.

Two beam trawlers dragging a steel cable net hauled the boat three miles to shallow water from the spot where it sank in 182 feet of water in a howling blizzard on Thanksgiving Day.

It is supposed that the men perished in the blizzard, but Diver Fred Wallace of Somerville found the boat upside down with a hole in the bottom. It is supposed that one of the air pressure tanks necessary in a Diesel-engined boat, blew out and the men's bodies may have been sucked by the explosion.

Yielding to the pleading of relatives, J. Lawrence Aiken, president of the General Seafoods Corp. directed the services of the Wave and the Gale and the crews. The trawlers, towing a 100-foot cable sailed 140 feet apart and netted the strange "fish on the first cast. It was impossible to see it, so they towed the dragger ashore until they encountered a 25-foot depth, when it was allowed to rest on the bottom.

Entertain Guests at Christmas Breakfast

By MARTHA LEE

SINCE it's hard to find dinner or lunch dates at this sociable season when some of your crowd are not previously engaged, why not entertain with a Christmas breakfast some morning about 10 or 11 o'clock? Perhaps you have a visitor you want to entertain informally—or children home for a holiday vacation—we know they would enjoy this type of entertainment.

This delightful custom of inviting friends in for breakfast was popular in England during the 19th century. All who were asked to a breakfast party were highly flattered by the invitation, for it indicated the hostess wanted very much to have the pleasure of their company.

BREAKFAST MENU

Tomato Juice
Rice Flakes With Cream
Scrambled Eggs
Mince Meat Scones Jelly Muffins
Coffee
Fruit Platter

Be generous with the tomato juice—having an extra supply on the buffet table if your breakfast is self service or keeping a generous pitcher at your hand during the sit-down meal. The coffee, too, should be continually on tap, as well as the scones and muffins. The secret of a successful breakfast party lies not in the variety but in the plenteousness of each item on the menu.

This menu puts the emphasis on hot breads, and for a reason: It is that guests at a holiday breakfast have time and feel freer to indulge their weakness for this favorite food. So we are suggesting two hot breads that are particularly outstanding for flavor and suited to the festive season, while scrambled eggs—always a favorite but too delicate to steal the show—is the main dish.

JELLY MUFFINS

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour.
4 tsp. baking powder.
1 tsp. salt.
2 tsp. sugar.
1 cup milk.
1 egg, well beaten.
4 tbsp. butter, melted.
Grated American cheese.
Currant jelly.

Sift the dry ingredients together (flour, baking powder, salt, sugar). Combine milk, egg and butter. Make a depression in center of dry ingredients, then pour in liquid mixture all at once, mixing only enough to dampen flour. Fill greased muffin pans about two-thirds full. Sprinkle grated cheese over top of each, then in center lightly place 1 tsp. of currant jelly. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) 25 minutes.

The mince meat scones lend a spicy holiday fragrance to the morning air. After you have made them you will decide to keep a jar or can of mince meat on hand to use in coffee cakes, biscuits and muffins as well as for wonderful pies and other desserts.

MINCEMEAT SCONES

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tbsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. fat
2 eggs
1-3 cup top milk or cream
Mincemeat

Sift first four ingredients together three times. Work fat in thoroughly. Beat eggs, first reserving a small portion of the unbeaten egg white for brushing over tops of scones. Add beaten eggs to flour mixture with milk or cream. Mix only enough to blend ingredients, then knead 30 seconds on slightly floured board. Roll to ¼ inch in thickness and cut into diamond shapes. Spread half of diamonds with 1 tsp. mincemeat then top with remaining ones. Brush the unbeaten egg white over tops, then sprinkle with sugar. Place on lightly greased cooky sheet and bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Serve hot.

LARGE FRUIT PLATTER

This is a final extra touch that sends the guests off even more enthusiastic about your breakfast party. Bring the platter in with dessert plates and see that each person gets a portion of each fruit. The assortment of fruits might be as follows:

2 or 3 bananas, cut lengthwise; 1 red apple, cut in thin wedges; 1 cup canned Bing cherries, drained; 4 to six semi-circles of canned pineapple; 1 large orange, sliced; and 1 grapfruit, sectioned.

SERVE AS HOSTESSES AT AVERY LECTURE

Miss Constance Learned, Miss Virginia Stone and Mrs. Roderic MacDonald took time off from Christmas shopping this morning to serve as hostesses at the ballroom doors for Miss Eunice Avery's regular Friday morning lecture to benefit the Children's Hospital.

You Can Be Beautiful

Here's Gift Already Wrapped

By ARLINE GOULD

A LIFE SAVER in the Christmas rush is the gift package that's already dolled up in festive wrappings . . . and no one realized it any better than a famous cosmetic house . . . so they made gay with luxurious silvery-green and copper paper, smart as anyone could want.

They have concocted "fragrance sets" that range from $1.25 to $3.75 and there is no charge for the fancy fixings.

In the accompanying Christmas morning scene, there's SIX of the excitement about an exquisite perfumed set of dusting powder . . . perfumed eau de cologne . . . cost a mere $2.25.

For the lass who has very a delicate air but a definite complexion . . . this is a swell present for one gal to give another . . . a "freshen up kit" for the super-sensitive dry skin."

It has three varieties of cream, two lotions a gauzy face powder and a tube of what is conceded to be one of the most marvelous make-up foundations in the world. $2.50 complete.

You've heard the young matron complain that she doesn't have time to think of her complexion these days . . . and you've noticed the ruinous effects . . . so pass the day by giving her this "freshen up kit." She'll discover that by keeping it in the downstairs lavatory and taking five minutes or so between redding up the living room and the library, she'll achieve wonders . . . and everyone will think she's been indulging in a series of expensive salon treatments.

Packed in neat natural [illegible] boxes, we might add.

For shopping information on these Christmas-wrapped gifts . . . write Arline Gould, Liberty 4-6600 weekdays except Saturday or write care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'TRAIL OF THE VIGILANTES' OFFERS TOPS IN RANCH FUN

Farce Delights Keith Patrons

By PEGGY DOYLE

Don't let its tag keep you away from Keith-Memorial's star-spangled special, "Trail of the Vigilantes."

It is no routine western but a wild, bango burlesque on [illegible], ten-gallon-bonnetted [illegible] and their tenderfoot partners that packs more punch than Joe Louis.

It should erase wrinkles from your brow and put them in your pocket for whatever your age or mood, when you enter the theater to sit during its 73 minutes' unfolding and south to your years and have you doubled with laughter.

Nestled to you, boys and girls of all ages, if it appears that Santa Claus may prove a cue-muffer where your Christmas is concerned or if the shoppers have buffeted you black and blue sashay over to the Keith Memorial and let your laughter shake the chip off your shoulder.

Did we forget to say that "Trail of the Vigilantes" has everything? Well, partner, it has, and Franchot Tone, top, plus Broderick Crawford, Andy Devine, Mischa Auer, Warren William and an audacious dame named Peggy Moran (no relation).

Tone, in his first picture since the stage reclaimed him, plays a tenderfoot reporter and marshal nicknamed Kansas," who comes to Peaceful Valley to investigate the sudden disappearance of his predecessor.

Crawford, a brawny, scrappy cowboy, and his over-upholstered sidekick, Andy Devine, who doubles as the gentleman's gentleman, encounter Kansas" during one of their frequent elbow bending sessions at the frontier refreshment-dispensary. They persuade the tenderfoot to give him a job. Then Mischa Auer even extends to a dashing Russian of chameleon ways, who subsequently proves his devotion by a bit of light-fingered skullduggery.

When Tone discovers Peaceful Valley's highly regarded Dawson, who is none other than Warren William hiding behind a mustache and a smirk you could cut with a knife as the black haired villain masquerading as the ranchers' protective association, the chase is on. And what a chase! It is a composite of all the heart-in-the mouth, faster-than-the-wink-of-an-eye chases ever dreamed up in the screen's wooliest westerns.

Whether you're a lowborn with delusions of sophistication, a highbrow with a secret yen for belly-laughs or just a wide-eyed youngster gaga over rootin', tootin' westerns, "Trail of the Vigilantes" is up your alley.

On the same bill is "Dreaming Out Loud," which introduces radio's Lum and Abner and features Frances Langford.

ALICE FAYE and John Payne in a scene from "Tin Pan Alley," which will be the Christmas week feature at the Paramount and Fenway.

RKO Boston Vaudeville Scores

By DON WARD

Whether he's tossing the rope around or getting off a fast line of patter and gags, or presiding as a quick-on-the-uptake m. c., Don Cummings is the shining star of the new vaudeville bill at the RKO Boston. The personable Cummings had tops his rope-throwing skill with his "eat through the needle's eye" trick and you'll have to see it to believe it.

Don introduces the biz names in the big pre-holiday show, and radio fans will be happy to see and hear pretty Joyce Gallimore, WEEI's radio contest winner, whose torchy tunes include "Down Argentine Way," "I Give You My Word," "Only Forever," and other heavy sugar favorites.

The Mia Miles Trio—two men and a girl—score with their smart dance act, topped by Del Ohrel in an acrobatic dance on a big bass drum that's somethin' to see. Their Mexican Hat Dance is a wow.

Walt Coolidge has the cleverest puppets imaginable, who can be anybody you can think from Sonya Henie and Mrs. Roosevelt, to W. C. Fields and a bunch of jitterbugs. Cute as they can be, too. Openers on the bill are Kenny and Norris, boys who do amazing things on a parallel bar.

Stage Veteran in Rice Play at Wilbur Monday

One of the European stage's best-known leading men will be found in the cast of Elmer Rice's "Flight to the West," when that play—in which Betty Field is featured—comes to the Wilbur theater on Monday night. He is Paul Hernried, Viennese actor who impersonates a suave but callous German diplomat in the Rice drama.

American audiences, however became acquainted with this [illegible] some time ago through the [illegible] film "Goodbye Mr. C[illegible]" in which Hernried will be remembered as the Austrian teacher Chips, who conducted the lat[illegible] long walking trips through the Tyrolean Alps.

Hernried was born and [illegible] in Vienna and secured his [illegible] start under Otto Ludwig Piscator, who for many years was managing director of Max Reinhardt's theater in Vienna. Some years ago Gilbert Miller, on an inspection tour of the continental theaters encountered the actor and offered him the part of Prince Albert opposite the Victoria of Pamela Stanley in his then contemplated London production of "Victoria Regina."

In addition to "Goodbye Mr. Chips," Mr. Hernried has appeared in various other films, all of them British made, among them "Night Train," "An Englishman's Home" and "Under Your Hat."

Stairs Pursue Miriam Hopkins

Playwrights and scenarists are notoriously fond of steps and stairs, considering them fascinating dramatic tools.

Miriam Hopkins is not and doesn't.

Stairways have pursued her.

They are still pursuing her. The Theater Guild's "Battle of Angels" which brings Miss Hopkins to the Wilbur Theater Monday Dec. 30, prior to her return to Broadway.

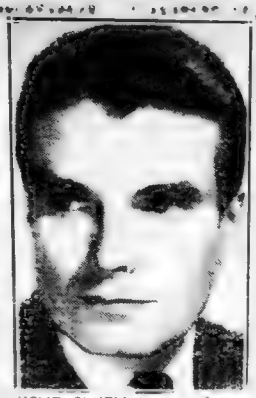
In fact, an indispensible set of stairs. They connect the small mercantile store in "Battle of Angels" with the living quarters above.

Relentless press agents have from time to time tried to point out to her that she literally fell downstairs into theatrical stardom. She is not impressed. Stardom may be all right, but not at the expense of two broken ankles.

Her first broken ankle almost ended her career before it was well started. She had left her Georgia home for Goddard Seminary in Barre, Vt. Over her protests of that time she wanted to be a painter or writer), she was cast for a leading part in one of the seminary's dramatic productions. During the production she fell down the stairs. Broke her ankle.

A number of years later in New York, she proceeded with a young actor's normal suddenness, to be discovered. She played a brief engagement at the Provincetown Playhouse.

While she was quickly established as a dramatic actress, Miss Hopkins began looking around for a dancing job on Broadway.



KENT SMITH is one of the principals in "Old Acquaintance," now in its final week at the Plymouth.

Ann Corio in Late Show at Old Howard

Tonight's midnight show at the Old Howard spotlights Ann Corio, burlesque's undisputed queen, who is currently [illegible] her own show. Gus Hall [illegible] is [illegible] Comedy is a big [illegible] of the show and Charles Kenyon has charge of purveyor.

By Walter Hartman

VERNON AGNEW'S face, as he stared at Kane and Crandall across his desk in the office of the Agnew Chemical Works, was gray.

"There isn't much to tell you," he said in a voice that sounded hollow.

"I arrived at the office an hour ago. It was ten o'clock. Five minutes later, the phone call came. The man on the phone said that I had just seven hours, until eight o'clock tonight, to pay out fifty thousand dollars. If I didn't, a bomb would wreck my plant. He said the bomb was here already, set to go off tonight at eight. I had the plant searched immediately."

"Find anything?" Kane asked.

"Nothing. We searched all over—the plant itself, the stock room and the shipping room. We didn't have a chance of finding anything. As you know, we make industrial chemicals. They're repacked in small cardboard cartons and kept in stock for shipment. By the time we could open all of them to search for the bomb, the time would have expired."

"Well, that's out, then," Crandall put in. Then he asked, "Working on any government contracts?"

Agnew shook his head. "No. Industrial stuff only. It isn't a question of foreign agents at work, or anything like that."

Crandall offered, "The only answer seems to be to comply with this fellow's demands and try to get him when he picks up the money."

A COINCIDENCE

Agnew said bleakly, "He's covered that angle, too. His specific instructions were these: I'm to put the money in a box and wrap the box in plain paper. Then I'm to take the package and get in the last car of a Bronx Park subway express. I'm to leave the package on the floor, out of sight of the passengers in the car.

"If everything's all right—that is, if he hasn't been followed and has spent some of the money to prove that it isn't marked—he'll telephone to let me know where the bomb is planted. If anything is done contrary to his orders, he won't call."

Before Kane could ask any more questions, the door to the private office opened and Agnew's secretary entered. A heavy scent of perfume remained in her wake. Kane sniffed, wrinkling his nose with a grimace of distaste.

Agnew almost achieved a laugh. "I've gotten used to it," he said. "Miss Byron, my secretary, is partial to that stuff. I generally give her a bottle of it for Christmas, much as I dislike it myself. It's called 'Flower of Night' and—" he broke off, snapping his fingers suddenly. Then he resumed, "That reminds me—I'd better send a boy to buy another bottle of it."

Kane lifted an eyebrow and observed. "Christmas is still a few days off."

"She's leaving today. Quitting. She gave her notice two weeks ago."

"Pretty convenient for her, isn't it?" said Crandall. "No chance of being bombed, if it goes off."

Agnew shrugged it off. "Just a coincidence, I suppose."

"Why's she quitting? Getting married?"

"Not exactly. She's rejoining her husband, Joe Crevick, used to be a chemist here. But we fired him when we found he was stealing supplies and selling them. We didn't want to prosecute, but it was grand larceny and once the charge was made, we had to go through with it. He got two years in prison. He was paroled a couple of weeks ago and now his wife's going back to him."

"I see," said Kane. Then he asked, "By the way, what time does Miss Byron get in in the morning?"

"Nine o'clock. Why?"

"Oh, just thinking. But let's get down to cases. I guess you'd better draw that money from the bank and go through with the delivery, as per instructions."

Agnew said heavily, "I guess that's the only thing we can do?"

"For the present," said Kane, rising. "While you wait for the money, I'm going out to buy some of that stuff for Miss Byron—what do you call it?—Flower of Night. Don't leave before I get back."

Kane was back in twenty minutes with not one but two bottles of Flower of Night. And a long slender package that he refused to open until he and Crandall had been left alone in Agnew's private office with the ransom money. They were closeted together for a brief time. When Agnew returned, the money was wrapped according to the telephoned instructions and there was a heavy scent of Flower of Night in the air.

Agnew, taking the package, asked, "You've put the money in here? There isn't any trick? Because he said—"

"Everything as per instructions," Kane said. "All you've got to do is follow them. We'll do the rest—Later."

Agnew was back in little over an hour. He dropped wearily into his chair and announced, "Well, it's done. Fifty thousand dollars in small, old bills, unmarked. And left as per instructions. I didn't see anybody I knew but I suppose he has it by now."

THE BOMB!

"Let's hope so," Kane said easily. "Then we can expect his call."

"You got nothing on me."

It came shortly before five. Kane and Crandall listened to the hoarse voice over the phone as it told Agnew triumphantly, "Okay. You did like you said. I just spent some of the dough and it's okay. Now I'll keep my promise. Go out into the stock room, where the K-22 is kept. Count twelve boxes up and six in from the left. That's the bomb. Take it out and douse it in oil before you open it and you're okay. And thanks for the donation."

There was a click as he hung up. Two men from the bomb squad were there already. Feverishly, Agnew directed the work as the carton indicated was unearthed from the pile. The bomb squad men lifted it gingerly. A faint ticking came from it. They took it out of the building to the container of oil prepared for it.

Agnew tried to force a smile and said to Kane, "Guess I won't have to worry about my income tax now, eh?"

"I don't know about that. Miss Byron leave?"

Agnew nodded. "I gave her the perfume and her pay—and wished her luck. She's gone."

"I think we'll be seeing her," Kane said, reaching for the phone.

They waited for more than an hour. Then the phone rang. Kane listened for a moment, then ordered, "Keep an eye on 'em. We'll be there in 15 minutes." To Crandall and Agnew he said as he headed for the door, "Come on. There's a gas station attendant in Newark just sold 'em some gas. They're eating in a lunch room next door. Step on it!"

The police car, siren wide open whisked down to the Holland Tunnel and through it and pulled to a sliding stop before the lunch room in Newark in less than the 15 minutes. The three men backed by Newark police, edged up to a window of the place and looked in. Miss Byron and a dark, sullen-faced man were finishing their meal at a table.

Kane waited until the pair finished and went to the cashier's desk. The man dug in his pocket and produced a bill in payment. It was then that Kane and Crandall swooped in on them.

TRAPPED!

Crevick had no chance to make a move. When Miss Byron saw Agnew behind the detectives, she uttered a sharp little cry and sank into a chair.

"You got nothin' on me," Crevick growled.

"All we've got on you, my friend," Kane said quietly, while Crandall snapped a pair of handcuffs about the man's wrists, "is the goods—the money that Agnew left in the subway train for you."

"Don't kid me," Crevick snapped. "There's nothin' wrong with this money. There's no marks on it."

Agnew was about to nod when Kane took the bill out of Crevick's hand and held it to Agnew's nose. Agnew sniffed once and gasped, "Flower of Night!"

"Right," Kane grinned. "Crandall and I figured it was Miss Byron and her husband, so we got an extra bottle of that very loud perfume and an insecticide spray gun. And we sprayed all the money you left for Crevick with it. Whew! It's strong enough to lift a safe!"

"But how," Agnew demanded, as one of the policemen brought in the package of money that had just been found in Crevick's car, "how is it that Crevick, or his wife, didn't get wise to it?"

Kane grinned again. "That was the easiest part of it. Our friend Crevick has a very bad cold, so he can't smell anything, and Miss Byron, who always wears Flower of Night, wouldn't detect it on anything else. But anyone who got within 20 feet of this money could smell it."

Life and Adventures of Santa Claus

-:- By Julie Lane

THE HONEST villagers were indignant. "As if we'd touch the miser's old money," they said angrily.

"I don't know what we can do about it," said Nicholas thoughtfully. "We can't force our way into the house, and, after all, it's his own grandchild. I guess we'll just have to wait around and see what happens. I can't believe anyone could stay as hard as that with a little child in the house."

The others shook their heads. "He's hard all through, that old rascal. Why, I'll wager he wouldn't even let her put out her stocking at Christmas Eve."

"That's a safe wager," laughed Nicholas. "He wouldn't open his front door even to let something free come in."

The crowd dispersed, and Nicholas went back to his work bench; but all through the months that followed, his mind was occupied with the thought of the lonely little Katje. He saw her several times after that, and learned that it was true that she would not be allowed to hang up her stocking.

The last time he visited her, he had been seen by old Dinsler, who waved his stick at him and told him angrily to keep away from his house and his grandchild. And after that day, Katje was to be seen no more.

Hoping for the best, however, Nicholas carefully made a few little toys for Katje and packed them away with his other gifts, and went on thinking and thinking until, just about a week before Christmas, when he was taking a walk around the big boarded-up house, hoping to catch a glimpse of Katje, a wonderful idea struck him.

Up to the chimney went Nicholas.

He had been staring up at the forbidding-looking house, all barred and locked, when his attention was caught by the huge stone chimney on the roof. His eyes brightened; he slapped his thigh and chuckled to himself. "I'll try it! I may get stuck, but it's worth the attempt."

Christmas Eve that year was a dark, moonless night. The wind whistled mournfully through the deserted streets, and a cold sleet stung Nicholas' face and covered his sleigh and reindeer with a shining coat of ice.

"Come on now, my good lads," he encouraged his deer. "Trip's almost over; we've only the house on the hill now. It'll probably take me the rest of the night," he muttered to himself, shivering in his red coat and looking like a big snowman, with the rain and sleet forming icicles on his snowy white beard.

He tied the deer to the front gate and then, taking his sack from the back of the sleigh, climbed from his high seat to the top bar of the fence, and in a moment was down in the yard. He stopped to listen; not a sound could be heard but a few shutters banging in the wind and the sighing of the big pines.

He crept over to the side of the house, where a sort of porch covered one door and made an excellent ladder to the roof. He had a hard time, fat and bulky as he was and encumbered by the sack on his back; but he finally puffed his way up to the top of the porch, and in a few minutes was crouched on the sloping roof of the house.

Now was the dangerous part. The roof was slippery with the sleet and rain that had fallen; he had to take out his little knife and

You Can Get a $150 LOAN in 24 Hours

AND REPAY ONLY $9.56 A MONTH

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $6.41 a month

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the lawful maximum—if you can repay in small monthly installments

Payments to fit your purse

You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table. (Loans also made in other amounts and for other periods.) Payments in the table show everything. Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law and is the same to everyone.

Simple to borrow

We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or your personal note.) No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. You don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the papers.

The Time Is Now: Wise Word to the Red Sox

I THINK I SEE A RESEMBLANCE between the country's lag in war industry and the Red Sox' apathy toward their April problem. In both cases April seems a long way off. So there, according to Washington report, are our assembly lines loitering and here, by eye witness, are our Sox sauntering toward the Zero hour with practically the same antiquated optimism as came apart so gallantly last summer.

Austen Lake

The time is NOW in both cases! Too Late is step-sister to Never!

Spring training and the cordial life on the cuff is nine weeks away—two months before we gentlemen of the press dust off our glory adjectives and dream again—dreams of that filmy stuff which busts like soap bubbles, in a soapy mist each September. The time is NOW! So let's audit the Sox effort since last Oct. 1.

They've slipped Billy Evans, the old farm factotum and fascinating tale-teller, down the laundry chute. And that, in a negative way, is a stride forward. For Billy, whatever his genial, laugh-provoking personality, added neither jot nor tittle to the club's stature in six years of frisking the minor league weeds. And they've bought the Louisville club outright instead of holding a minority hunk. And that's something—for the far future! And they've traded Roger Cramer, Jim Bagby, Gerald Walker and Gene Desautels for Frank Pytlak, Pete Fox, Joe Dobson and Odel Hale. And that's just swapping string, stamps and jackknives with the neighbor's children.

N. Y. Boasts About 'All' Team

NEW YORK STRONG BOY

By WALTER KILEY

A [illegible] section of Gotham fight fans will escort New [illegible] City's representative in boxing championships to Boston for next Monday night's Eastern All-America title [illegible] at the Boston Garden.

[illegible]

SAME BOAST IN '39

[illegible]

And they came to Boston, [illegible].

They did do well and they did [illegible] a remarkable line-up of [illegible] fighters who did [illegible].

However, New York ran into a [illegible] team which did not [illegible] about its prowess but let [illegible] speak for it.

When the smoke was over, Boston [illegible] four great champions [illegible] National All-American finals and [illegible] that same quintet on a journey to San Francisco.

New York wound up with three Eastern titles and had to take second and bitter honors to the Yankees from New England.

With all due respect to what New York may show up with on Monday, and with the greatest regard for what Baltimore and Albany bring along, local sports followers will once again stand pat on the Boston talent.

Gene Driscoll, George Freeman, Tom Kanaly, Mike Conroy, Dist. Atty. Bill Foley or any of the other countless habitual attendants at amateur wars will prove to you on request just why this 1940 Boston team is the greatest in the long and honorable history of the pures hereabouts.

The New Yorkers send along glowing accounts of each of their contenders.

PRO ASPIRATIONS

They wax hot over Earl Lowman, their heavyweight, a plumber's helper who came up the hard way. They tell how the giant had to fight to exist. By the time he survived some 200 street battles, he felt it was time to take the thing seriously. So he delved into the amateur game and soon was knocking them all out. And now Earl has professional aspirations. He literally punched himself into the Eastern All-Americas.

Nat Peragine, a compactly put-together light heavyweight, wide shoulders tapering to a slim waist, and boasting the kick of a mule, is another New York standout. Over there they say our Tommy Sullivan won't have a chance in the same ring with Peragine. However, Southie's Tommy won't let that one get away without a bruising argument.

Their middleweight is one Arthur France who they tell us hits with power to either head or body with telling effect. France's friends were so confident he would win the New York title last Monday that they sent a scout over here to get a ringside view of Larry Pacino of Revere. That scout reported back to France that Pacino would be duck soup for a fighter of France's ability. They can have their France. We'll take our Pacino.

COTTON PICKER

Gene Johnson who was born in Georgia and lived along the banks of the [illegible] muddy rivers where [illegible] fights helped to pass [illegible] by going in off cotton picking [illegible] Metropolitan A. A. U. [illegible] as well as Metropolitan [illegible] tabmeister in the 147-[illegible]. He may meet up with [illegible] Andrews if the draw works out that way. When Andrews hits 'em, the canvas feels nothing like a bed of cotton. So . . . !

Bill Moore, the New York 155 pounder, is a brother of the famous Phil Moore. He loves checkers [illegible] as boxing.

Roxbury Bill Daley promises to send Moore back to his brother a checker player.

J. W. DUTTON DEAD

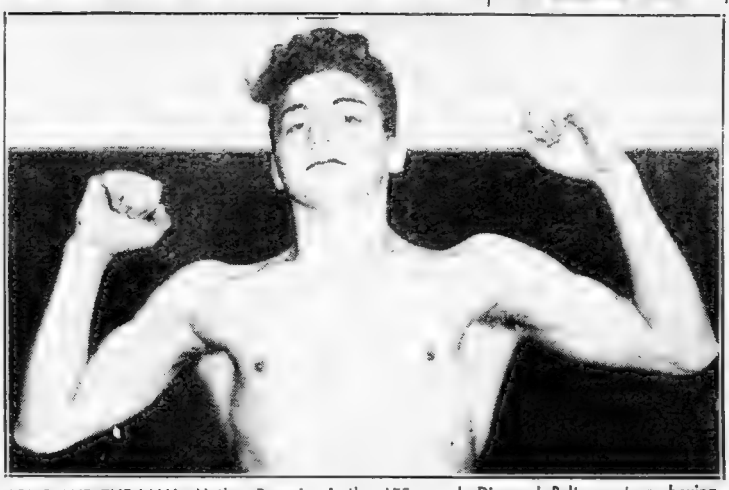
PROVIDENCE, Dec. 19 (AP)—J. Wm. Lincoln Dutton, 81, one of the founders of the Longwood Cricket Club, Brookline, Mass., and formerly a Boston exporter, died at a hospital here tonight.



ARMS AND THE MAN—Nathan Peragine is the 175-pound Diamond Belt amateur boxing champion of New York. He's a strong lad and is quite proud of his fistic prowess. He'll meet Tommy Sullivan and others at the Garden Monday in Eastern All-America finals. Nathan is one of many talented boys entered from Gotham.

R. B. I. Averages Prove Detroit's Right to Flag

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP) — The official American League averages said in statistical manner today what baseball fans had known for some time—that Hank Greenberg and Rudy York literally "drove" the Detroit Tigers to the 1940 American League pennant.

The circuit's figures on runs-batted-in show Greenberg the league champion with a total of 150 runs driven across the plate. The No. 2 spot went to his teammate, York, with a total of 134.

SWITCH AIDED CLUB

Greenberg, who switched to the outfield after years at first so that York could play the initial sack and give his club the benefit of his power at the plate, made his runs-batted-in total in 148 games. This represented a step up of 38 over his 1939 total in 138 contests. Big Hank struck out 75 times and drew 93 bases on balls. York fanned 88 times and drew 89 passes.

Without the Greenberg-York punch, it is doubtful whether the Tigers could have won the flag, for the club finished fourth in pitching and sixth in fielding.

Joe DiMaggio of New York ranked third in the RIB department with a mark of 133, with Jimmy Foxx of Boston fourth at 119.

BOSTON SECOND

Charlie Keller of New York drew the most walks, 106, and for a fifth consecutive year the Yankees' Frankie Crosetti was the circuit's leading target, being hit by pitched balls 10 times. Sam Chapman of Philadelphia fanned the most times, 98, while Lou Boudreau of Cleveland grounded into the most double plays, 23, even though he had a brief int season.

As expected, Detroit took the runs batted in title for team competition, the Tigers driving in 829 runs, 19 more than the total compiled by Boston.

By JACK CONWAY

BOB QUINN, president of the Bees, is deserving of the high recognition he will receive at the baseball writers' dinner in New York early in February for "meritorious service to baseball through the years."

Each year the New York baseball writers make two awards. One is to the most valuable player, and the other is to a man who has given meritorius service to baseball for a great number of years.

The latter honor has already been conferred on Miller Huggins, former manager of the Yanks; Bill Hanna, whose gifted pen (or should I say portable typewriter?) did much to increase the popularity of the national pastime; Babe Ruth, my idea of the greatest crowd pleaser baseball has ever known and I have Ty Cobb in mind when I make this statement; Wilbert Robinson, famous player and later manager of the Dodgers.

John McGraw, the old Napoleon of the game and famous as a member of the Baltimore Orioles and as pilot of the Giants; Walter Johnson, Washington pitcher (I wish the Red Sox had a pitcher half as good); Walter (Rabbit) Maranville who came out of New Bedford in the New England league to become a star for the championship Braves of 1914; Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash himself and now manager of the Pirates.

Travis Jackson, Giants' shortstop; Bill Klem, veteran umpire; Joe McCarthy, leader of the Yanks, and Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yanks and former manager of the Red Sox.

An illustrious group to which the name of Bob Quinn will give added lustre.

After Bob Quinn Sold the Red Sox

THE MOST GRIPPING story about Bob Quinn has not anything to do about the days when he played ball in Ohio and in other Western States. It does not concern his successes with Columbus in the American Association and with the Browns in St. Louis. It does not deal with his magic in reaching into bush leagues and coming up with the stars who made the Browns one of the best clubs in the American league during the Quinn era.

It does not concern Bob's struggle to make the Red Sox a success after he had purchased the club with some of his own money and with funds he had raised from friends and neighbors in Columbus, Ohio.

It is the story of the early evening after Bob, in a downtown law office, had signed the papers that turned over his ball club to Tom Yawkey, the young millionaire.

"I told Yawkey's lawyers I had to get enough for the club to return the money of my friends in Columbus, and also to pay my debts," Bob told me one day in Florida as the warm breezes swept in from the Everglades and we idled away the time watching the Bees practice.

"Those people in Columbus had given me their money because more they trusted me, and I intended to see they got it back.

"I didn't care what happened to my own money, but I did want to pay those people I owed. The lawyers backed and filled as they tried to beat down the price I asked the club, but when they finally offered me sufficient money to meet my obligations to my friends and to my creditors I signed the papers."

Without Job in Autumn of Life

QUINN PAUSED as his quick eye watched a young player smash a line drive to deep center field. In the boy, Quinn could see big league possibilities.

"After I signed the papers for the lawyers," went on Bob, "I left the office. I was in my sixties and had devoted my entire life to baseball. The game had been my life's work.

"I went to my home where I had dinner with Mrs. Quinn and my children. I didn't feel much like eating, but I forced myself to do so.

"After dinner, Mrs. Quinn and myself sat in our living room. I am not ashamed to say my eyes were moist as I thought of the fact I had just sold my club and that I was without funds.

"I related the story of the sale of the club to Mrs. Quinn, and she took it like a champion. My wife told me we would start all over again, that I would get a job with some baseball club and that we would manage to live on my income. In the happiness of my home life I forgot all about the fact I had just signed away ownership of the Red Sox.

"I was soon back in baseball with the Dodgers, then I returned to Boston to head the Bees. Perhaps it was the new courage Mrs. Quinn instilled into me by the fine manner in which she took our reverses, but I regained my magic in finding star young ball players.

"The Bees have clicked. It will be two years before they are a championship team, but remember what I am telling you today. Our club is going to go places."

ZIVIC HAS 7-LB. PULL ON JENKINS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Prizefighting is a funny business, as witness tonight's 10-rounder at the Garden between Lew Jenkins, the lightweight champion, and Fritzie Zivic, the welterweight boss.

On their recent records, there is no good reason to suppose that they are anywhere near evenly matched. Zivic figures to be a shoo-in. Yet the heavy advance sale indicates that the Garden will be filled to its distant eyes, if not a trifle overcrease in prices too.

The only way to account for it is Jenkins' punch, the established fact that the skinny, hollow-eyed little guy from Sweetwater can knock the ears off anybody he can hit right, up to heavyweights.

There is a quick comparison between Jenkins and Zivic, as both have fought Henry Armstrong in the past year. Henry, then welterweight champion, gave Jenkins a cruel beating in their outdoor title meeting and forced Lew to quit between the sixth and seventh rounds. Zivic only a few months later beat Armstrong in a hard-won battle at the Garden to win the 147-pound

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic will have a seven and one-quarter weight pull over Lightweight Champ Lew Jenkins in their 10-round bout tonight in Madison Square Garden. At the weigh-in at noon Zivic scaled 142½ to Jenkins' 135¼.

Jenkins scaled 136½ for his losing battle against Henry Armstrong last summer.

If anything was learned about Jenkins in his bout with Armstrong, it was that he [illegible] and too frag[illegible] [illegible] world. Armstrong [illegible] apart. Yet [illegible] giving away some [illegible] and it [illegible] neglect the thin man's middle.

The match was brought on by Jenkins' quick knockout of Pete Lello a few weeks ago. The first left that exploded on Lello's chin knocked him flat, and the crowd went wild at the savage fury with which Lew finished him off. Promoter Mike Jacobs heard the yelling, and he knew he wanted Jenkins back in the Garden ring before Christmas.

Riflemen Watch Sunday's Paper For Schedule

Announcement of the various leagues which will fire in the William Randolph Hearst Citizens' Marksmanship Competition will be made in Sunday's Advertiser.

All rifle shooting clubs which entered individually without league affiliations have been grouped into league units for the Hearst matches. Each will receive letters through the mails within a few days advising them of the member teams of their respective leagues, and the names of the rival club secretaries. They will be asked to contact each other and get busy at setting up a schedule for the winter matches.

All clubs which filed entry for the Hearst Citizens' Shoot are urged to secure copies of next Sunday's Advertiser so that they may acquaint themselves in advance with their opposition.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 20 (INS)—Nebraska's Corn Huskers were rolling westward today on the first leg of their trip to the Rose Bowl to clash with the University of Stanford eleven on New Year's day.

The Huskers were en route to Phoenix, Ariz., where they will practice for eight days before continuing on to Pasadena on Dec. 29.

AUSTEN LAKE SAYS:

mering on the open sea. There's a little of all those elements in Joe—good taste, wistfulness, simplicity, candor, forebearance. It's easy to fire orchids at Cronin.

But Joe has passed his physical pinnacle. Some of nature's elastic has gone from his limbs. That's no slur to Joe. The inexhorable roll of the years, the evanescence of youth and the ephemerality of the human frame, come to each in his turn. I say it sadly. It's Joe's turn now. His athletic whizz has gone! His teammates know it. The league, in general, knows it. And I think, in the secret recesses of his soul Joe knows it too. Ground balls that he could have gobbled in his capacious paw a few years ago go drooling off his finger tips. The stops he sometimes makes with a muscle cracking stretch would have landed in his lap. He's 34 now and that's latter age for a shortstop.

MAKE NO MISTAKE, JOE HAS SUFFERED at his severe task—not out loud and in public, but in the sub-cellars of his spirit. And that has contributed to his physical toil. The perennial boyish look which he brought to Boston in '34 has faded to a lean, semi-grimness from long and futile peering into foggy futures. He has broken his bones, been ill from worry, handled some of the most pesky characters in the game, watched his plans tumble like spilled sawdust, been scorched by the critics.

So the screaming need of the 1941 Red Sox is for a young, vigorous, ground-covering shortstop. The club's farm system should have dug one up years ago, for gradual nursing. But no! Well then, so should the club have been fattening its pitching and growing up some catchers. But no, also! Always through the years Evans would report a wealth of young material in his checkrooms, and always they were "two years away." That began six years ago, and they are still, if at all, "two years away."

Last September I sat with Yawkey in his inner sanctum and asked, "If you had it to do all over again, would you do it differently?" He brooded for a while over the Jersey street traffic, puckered a frown and said, "Yes." He would not have shoveled out tons of hereditary cash for noted names. He'd have built solidly and cautiously from youth and bought shrewdly from the top of the minor league can.

FOR THERE HAVE BEEN THREE distinct phases in Yawkey's ownership, (1) the lavish purchase of ready-made major league heroes, (2) the broad-guage farm system of growing kids up from hot house sprigs, (3) and, last year, the helter-skelter buying of the best available athletes from Class-AA clubs. It's been expensive and, to date, futile for the team is still a whoop and a holler away from its pennant idyll.

Yawkey is bland on the surface and has a round faced jollity which deceives strangers into thinking he is laughing his way through life. But there is a speculative smoulder in his eye and a glint that hints at stubborn stuff underneath. The fact is that behind a boyish weakness for baseball he is a solid business man who runs his mines, mills and investments profitably, so that he has improved his patrimony of some thirty millions instead of sweating it down. He felt that he had bought a pennant last spring, but he made it plain that he was through dumping funds into a sink hole. So that now some of the fun may have gone out of the toy. And unless I miss my guess Yawkey will sometime soon bounce out of his docile pussy cat character and start chasing somebody around with the end of a mop handle. The time is NOW.

Sixty Racing Days Granted Suffolk Downs

Suffolk Downs will conduct its 1941 race meeting over a stretch of 60 days extending from May 12 through July 19, inclusive, it was announced today.

The Massachusetts State Racing Commission today stated "that a license to conduct a racing horse meeting has been granted to the Eastern Racing Assn, Inc., at Suffolk Downs, East Boston, from May 12 to July 19, inclusive, excepting only Sundays."

The meeting will be the same as in past years, extending over one continuous stretch. The new license calls for the same number of racing days as in 1940.

The Eastern Racing Assn, in its original application, asked for dates a week later. The new dates are about a week earlier in opening and closing than a year ago.

Important to the success of the Suffolk meet are three holidays which have in the past proved to attract large crowds. They are May 30, Memorial Day; June 17, Bunker Hill Day, and July 4, Independence Day.

31 Rams Going South

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (INS)—There were 31 big, rugged football players today who are convinced there is a Santa Claus.

These were the lucky 31 who were selected by Coach Jimmy Crowley of Fordham, to make the trip to Dallas for the Cotton Bowl game against the Texas Aggies.

Crowley announced the squad will leave here Christmas and go straight to Dallas, arriving there on Dec. 27.

E. E. Keevin Killed in Fall Under Train

E. E. "Eddie" Keevin, 62, of Lynn, former boxing promoter, well-known youth organizer and Lynn circulation representative of the Daily Record-American was accidentally killed by a train near Porter station, North Cambridge last night.

His body was found on the outbound track on the main line of the Fitchburg branch of the Boston and Maine railroad about a quarter of a mile from the station, by two North Cambridge youths, Edward Trant, of Cedar pl., and Howard Cormier, 14, of Washburn ave., who were taking a short cut across the tracks.

Identified through papers in his clothing, the body was removed by police to the Watson Funeral Home, Pearl st., Cambridge. It was believed that he lost his balance while passing between the cars and fell under the wheels.

He was well known in the sporting world for more than 30 years. He was a leading promoter in Boston, co-owned with Joe Woodman of such famous fight clubs as the "Gas House" in Atlantic ave. and the Lenox Athletic Club in South Boston.

For several years he was manager of Jimmy Walsh, one of New England's most famous bantamweights and a contender for the world's featherweight title. He was also credited with giving Sam Langford his start.

Eddie was perhaps best known as a benefactor of newsboys, a leading figure in the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation and the father of the "bicycle bill" seeking state registration of all bicycles as a means of preventing thefts and eliminating death hazards for bicyclists.

A personal friend of President "Teddy" Roosevelt, he was a leader in youth organizations and a sponsor of Harvard University newsboy scholarships.

Kanonen from the teams of Dartmouth, Williams, Yale, Norwich, N. H. U., and the Academys of Deerfield, Gould, Vermont, and Dow have accepted the issue in both langlauf and slalom races. The cross-country jaunt will be held Saturday over the 7½ mile course laid out by Sel Hannah last year. Sunday comes the slalom on the Cannon Trail over a 1400-yard stretch with a vertical descent of about 750 feet. Snow conditions at this writing are rather poor, but the base is the best ever at this date, and 6 to 10 inches of new snow will result in very good running. Hear that, St. Peter? . . . A LATE FLASH SAYS "NEW SNOW IN FRANCONIA.

Other ski clubs are entering this training meet. Such stars of the slippery slats as Ted Hunter, Roger Peabody, Bobby Clark, Warren and Howard Chivers, Larry Tinkham and the Broomhall brothers will be seen in action. And here's a chance to get an early line on some of our potential college skiing aces . . .

Sponsoring the meet, the Franconia Ski Club will also hold a dance Saturday night in honor of the competitors at the Town Hall. Ski clothes may be worn to this colorful affair. The stag lines may be long, so, girls, please come, one and all! Good skiers are usually good dancers as well . . .

Cannon Mountain is literally a "skihive" of activity this week-end for Roland Peabody will also be conducting the season's first tests for ski instructors' certification . . . Patronize USEASA Certified Instructors!

SKI SPORTRAIT

We first met him skiing when the temperature was at a broiling 92 degrees! But it wasn't on snow; rather, on the sand dunes at Barnstable on Cape Cod three years ago in August. This was when it was our pleasure to see NORWOOD COX perform on the boards. This expert ski pro is now selling skis and equipment at the Harvard Cooperative Society's store at Harvard sq. in Cambridge, that famous store known to all as the "Harvard Coop."

The skiing background of Norwood Cox is varied and exciting, and his early training most thorough. Attending a school in Germany in 1922, Norwood received his initial instruction from Karl Nanner, a noted racer, at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

After completely mastering the fundamentals of the art, the skiing sage of the Harvard "Coop" then began to look for bigger ski worlds to conquer. He immediately proceeded to win the Juvenile Coup in Jumping and Cross-country. Later, in 1928, he placed ninth at St. Pierre de Chatruses in the Combined Event of jumping, cross-country, and downhill. He then went on to capture the Coup Turk, first place in the International Meet at Grenable, France! . . .

Among other European achievements, Norwood was appointed as chief instructor of a fashionable ski resort in the Italian Alps. The Gazetta de Populo also bestowed a gold medal on him for his prowess . . .

Returning to America, our Maestro took the position as ski pro of the Arlberg Club in Denver, Colorado. This region was just starting to be developed . . .

It was at this spot, recalls Norwood, that one of the funniest skiing incidents in which he participated took place.

Pics Take on Baltimore; Harvard Duels Juniors

By SAM BROGNA

Baltimore Orioles make their first visit to the Hub tonight, when they invade the Garden for the first of a two-game series with the Boston Olympics in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League contest.

Local followers will be treated to another double bill as the Junior Olympics take on a disappointed Harvard sextet in a preliminary game slated to get under way at 6 o'clock.

Following tonight's game between the Orioles and Olympics, both clubs return to the Garden tomorrow night for the concluding tilt.

The Pics, winners of their last three games, will be gunning for their first win over the Baltimore entry. Twice this winter they have met. The first was a 1 to 1 deadlock in the opening game of the season and the second, three weeks ago, was taken by the Birds, 4 to 2.

But on each occasion the local team played without the services of their best players. Tonight, however, the invaders will find an altogether different outfit in the Olympics, since they not only will be at full strength but are clicking on all cylinders.

The Baltimore representatives, now in second place in the standings, features fast, light forwards backed by some sturdy defensemen. The starting defensive duo, Jack Dyte and Guy Roach, averages 205 pounds.

MISSISSIPPI OFFICIAL WELCOMES B. C. BOYS

By BILL GRIMES

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Dec. 20—After spending 38 hours on the Boston College special, the Eagles climbed out of their sleepers this morning and trekked for the Hotel Reed which will be their headquarters while they are putting on the final drive for the Tennessee Vols and the Sugar Bowl classic in the Tulane Stadium on New Year's Day.

Without a single exception, the Eagles are fed up on choo-choo trains. The long, and none too speedy, ride down through Virginia, the Carolinas and through Georgia yesterday took its toll from the eastern champions. They were practically exhausted when they retired last night from climbing off and on the train at every station and as a diversion from the tedious ride, they'll welcome a real workout on the gridiron this afternoon.

The players were welcomed by Lieut.-Gov. Dennis Murphree of Mississippi and A. N. Goldberg, president of the New Orleans Midwinter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl calendar.

They said they were elated when informed that Boston College had selected Bay St. Louis as the site for its final tuning up for Major Bob Neyland's Vols and that there'd be hundreds of Mississippians at the Tulane Stadium New Year's Day pulling for the Eagles.

After the greeters had departed, Head Coach Frank Leahy, accompanied by Fr. Dullea, Ed McKeever, Johnny Druze and Joe McArdle went over to St. Stanislaus College with Brother Luter, who was at the station when the Eagles arrived. Then the entire squad went to mass, which was said by Fr. Dullea.

HARD WORK AHEAD

Leahy made a careful study of the St. Stanislaus gridiron and the clubhouse facilities and was apparently satisfied with conditions. He ordered a practice for this afternoon, but it was to be a light one, for the players were still stiff from the train ride and strenuous workout they were put through the afternoon they left home.

However, after today it will be all work and no play until Dec. 31. The Eagles need plenty of practice to perfect their timing and to harden themselves for the Vols who, according to reports, play a two-fisted brand of football.

Leahy didn't emerge from his drawing room until the Boston College special arrived in Atlanta . . . He was in pretty good spirits when he pulled into this Gulf Hamlet this morning . . . There was a bevy of southern belles waiting for the Eagles at every station.

The prize gathering was at Spartanburg S. C. where a small army of beauties from DeConverse school put on a real glamour act

Joe Zabilski is musically inclined. And if he masters the instrument he's been endeavoring to play it will be a masterpiece. Not to mention a blessing . . . The sheiks of the party are, for the most part, the lesser known of the football players . . . The O'Rourke-Goodreault contract bridge team did a bang-up job until it challenged a couple of scribes.

RANGERS SUBDUE BRUINS, 5 TO 3

By the Associated Press

A two-game winning "streak" is a bit short for eulogies, yet there were certain definite indications today that the New York Rangers may be headed back to the Heights which should be theirs as defenders of the Stanley Cup in the National Hockey League.

It was more than the mere score of their victory over the Boston Bruins last night, though this in itself—5-3—was enough to be impressive.

It was rather the way in which the Blueshirts carried themselves, a manner that very clearly gave one the feeling they knew they had the situation under control at all times.

Actually they didn't salt the game away until a free-scoring third period in which they outshot the Bruins, four goals to two.

But all the way through, the 12,248 Madison Square Garden customers felt the Rangers were a safe bet to gain some slight revenge for two earlier whippings by the Hub skaters.

RANGERS ADVANCE

The victory, on top of last Sunday's rout of the New York Americans, lifted the Rangers into fourth place, one point back of Boston, a hoist that has been helped no end by a patchwork line made up of the two Colville brothers, Mac and Neil, and Lynn Patrick, filling in for the injured Alex Shibicky.

This line has accounted for 12 goals in eight games, and bagged three last night, two by Mac Colville and one by Neil.

The newest Ranger recruit, Minnesota-born Johnny Polich, got his first N. H. L. point in his first N. H. L. game. Only the fact that Ott Heller was in the crease prevented the youngster, who had the jitters at the start but warmed up quickly, from also getting a goal.

AMERICANS TIE

The night's other two games also juggled the lower-place standings. The New York Americans, playing a ragged-overtime tie with the Detroit Redwings, edged out of the cellar as the Montreal Canadiens were left there alone through their 2-0 loss to the Chicago Blackhawks.

It was the fourth successive overtime game for Detroit, which has won one, tied one and lost two.

Tennessee Ace Predicts Win Over Eagles

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 20 (AP)—Tennessee's All-America guard, Robert Lee Suffridge, got out on a limb today with a prediction the vaunted Volunteers would beat Boston College in the Sugar Bowl football game by at least a touchdown.

"We'll be satisfied with anything better than a tie, but I believe we'll win by at least a touchdown," said the 190-pounder, who won the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy as "the most outstanding lineman of the year."

"We're going to be in better condition for Boston than we were for Southern California last New Year's," he continued.

"In my opinion, Boston will have a stronger club than the Trojans (who walloped the Vols, 14-0, in the Rose Bowl—but we'll be able to take 'em."

BROOKLINE SIX FACES HUDSON

By SAM BROGNA

Eastern Massachusetts Hockey League pops off the lid to the second week of scholastic hockey with another quartet of games tonight at the Boston Arena.

Tomorrow morning the Boston conference swings into its second session with four more schools making their debut. These games, scheduled again for the Garden, get under way at 8:15 a. m. And in the afternoon, the Greater Boston loop takes over at the North Station depot with the Bay Staters housing the Arena.

With four of the winners meeting each other tonight, the leaders in the Eastern circuit are expected to dwindle down to two.

Defending champions, Brookline which defeated Natick, 3 to 1, in its opener, is called upon to meet Hudson, the club loaded to the guild with veteran material and the one tabbed at the start of the season as the outfit to watch for titular honors.

The out-of-towners looked immense in rolling up a 6 to 2 win over a supposedly strong Brockton six, five goals being accounted for in the first period.

Brookline with but two returning veterans, will find the going much rougher tonight and it wouldn't be at all surprising to see the title holders suffer their first defeat.

Dedham, winners 4 to 2 over Malden, and Lexington conquerors of Somerville, 2 to 0, meet in the opening clash. The first mentioned school rules a slight favorite to win.

In the other two contests, Somerville takes on Brockton and Natick crosses sticks with Malden.

B. C. Six Plays At Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 20—Princeton's powerful sextet, conqueror of the Terriers of Boston University last Saturday night, will meet another Boston hockey team when Coach John "Snooks" Kelley brings his Boston College Eagles here tonight. The clash of Tiger and Eagle is an annual affair.

Last season Boston College opened its season with a defeat at the hands of a powerful Princeton six. Since that date the ice Eagles, most of whom participated in last season's clash, have been looking forward to a return bout with the Tigers.

Judging from past performances this evening's clash should be a most even contest. Last Saturday Princeton showed plenty of power when it belted a good B. U. team, 6 to 1.

The same night Boston College made the college ice world sit up and take notice when it battled Quad League champion, Yale, all the way before succumbing, 4-3, in the last two minutes of a rugged contest. Tuesday night the Eagles routed a hapless Tech team, 15-1.

'Point' Wants Blaik or Neyland

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP)—The U. S. military academy is the newest contributor to football's rumor foundry, now that the Army has called Capt. Bill Wood from coaching the Cadet gridders to active service with the 1st cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Strongest of the reports was that the academy athletic board would strike a compromise by continuing its graduate-coaching policy but taking that graduate from civilian ranks.

This would narrow the field to such candidates as Biff Jones of Rose Bowl-bound Nebraska, who already has said he's happy at Lincoln; Major Bob Neyland of Sugar Bowl-bound Tennessee, and Earl Blaik of Dartmouth.

Wood, whose new orders will put him on a California-bound transport out of New York Feb. 6, coached the Army teams for three years in which they won 12 of 28 games.

Jack Conway Speaks At Everett Fiesta

Jack Conway, sports editor of the Boston Evening American, will be a guest speaker tonight at the Everett high school sports night celebration to be held at the Rockwood Auditorium in the senior high school.

Proceeds of the affair will send the State champion football team to the Sugar Bowl to see the Boston College-Tennessee New Year's Day classic.

Other speakers include Pat Hanley, B. U. coach; Al McCoy, Colby mentor; Ed Doherty, Red Sox public relations director, and Capt. Gainard of the City of Flint fame. Ranny Weeks, popular band leader, will be master of ceremonies.

CALLING ENGLAND AND HOME

Greetings To Homeland—His face reflecting the joy that fills his boyish heart, John Pope of Surbiton Surrey, England, sends his Christmas greetings—and those of America—to England and his parents . . . speaking over microphone of Station WRUL at the University Club. John was one of thirteen refugee children, eleven of them students at Darby Academy, the other two at Center School, Hingham, to send greetings to Hingham, Eng., during the broadcast. (Story by Austen Lake, other pictures, pages 32, 36.)
